I write this to meet you at Montreal. Perhaps I should not press the point of still holding the Paradoxides bed to the Lower Cambrian. But I have always looked upon them as such, and this is the division established by Hicks some years ago and which the faunas I think support. Hicks's division however is into Upper and Lower, and the axis of the hub is placed by him between the Menevean and the Leicigula flags. I may get time to look into the question more fully.

When you get a chance to look at the piece of graphitic shale I sent, look at ⁶⁸ the smooth side, and let me know what you think of it.
