

will bear, but without result.

Would it not be the case that such bodies would be confined to certain parts of the organism, or perhaps only appear at certain seasons, and that they might occur only in rare instances in fossils?

Yours very truly

H. O. Whiffell