Dearest Love,

We are having rather colder weather now and to-day a few flakes of snow fluttered down. Indoors, however, we are comfortable as the furnace is in operation. Boyie is getting over his cold nicely and was out for a little while to-day. The others are all very well and could not look better than they are looking at present.

 They miss you very much and I need not say that you will have a hearty welcome
 when you return.

I have just been at the meeting of the Library Committee when we had no end of business.
 The library is growing fast and among the late donations is another valuable one from Mr Redpath. The
 great difficulty now is to find space for the books, <sup>3</sup> and it will be long before the library will have <sup>to</sup> encroach upon the convocation hall

— which of course
means that we must have a new convocation
hall.

I have nothing new to tell you and must not weary you with details of college work. You get quite enough of such details when at home. I merely send this darling to let you know that even amidst college work you are uppermost in my mind and heart.
With all love, your fond Burnard.

The books, and which he kept before the library will have received
 the committee in hand
 - articles of course
 answers that we must have a new committee
 hall.
 I have just sent you
 the new and must not miss your right to state of course - and I hope quite many - I wish to know - I have a long but the matter is the
 you know that we must know that you are
 and that we must know that we must
