My dear George

I take a minute before breakfast here to acknowledge I thank you for your most kind letter. I have been most dumbly proud for I not allowed to congratulate myself. Monday Mrs. Crow drove me round to be in her neighbourhood.
 Yesterday we crossed to Liverpool early & visited the markets & then met Mrs. Cunningham according to appointment; when Mrs Crow left me Mrs C. drove me about to show ^{me} several places of interest, I then went here to dinner. Her house is a palace home & I am treated upon like a princess. I bought a pair of scissors to take to Eva from you. Mrs C. has sent Eva & R. a book each.

Mr Crow has paid my passage I went to the ship to find if my boxes are all right. but I have not heard the result. I am sorry you have been inconvenienced for want of the key of your bag. As I am the defaulters.

I should not likely have noticed that I had it on my bank had you not named it. I now enclose it. I also bought another address ticket to replace the one I took, but Mrs Crow carried it off with her. if I find time I will send it when I go over to day. It do not feel disappointed if this shall prove my last note. There are too many interruptions. I write at railway speed. I got the draft ~~sent~~ sent by Mr. Bell.

I received letters from home.

get better my - I suppose - something is more your affairs. My love to your Aunt. Surge - street, 7 number. I never draw my pen -

Love believe me

Your affections
