

Little Notes
June 18th 1900

Dearest George,

I had scarcely posted a letter to you, when your two packets arrived.

The summary of the Report gives me a very oppressive idea of what the work must have been in the complete edition. It is amazing how so much can be accomplished in one year under so many difficulties.

What will people do in a two yrs or so, when all such works have been pursued to their close! I suppose do it again upon some new & improved basis.

The African war lingers on, life being sacrificed, & the country desolate - surely there must soon be a resumption of farm life in the Republic even if Guerrilla warfare still continues in the north - I see one can forecast - what the upheaval in China may lead to. One waits now with bated breath to hear what happens when the international force reaches Peking:

We are all well here, & the Cottages being occupied one after another. But the country quiet - still reigns - no word of when you may come, & we have not had a word from Franklin, I had expected to see telegraph from the ship: Bernard talks of trying to come down at the end of the week - with Brett & Conrad. I hope he may succeed in doing so - We have been rather busy here, for our cook has been ill, but I am expecting a very good girl at the end of the month.
