

Kensington Palace.

Nov. 20. 1883.

My dear Osborn

I am very glad to hear of the discovery of unadulterated authentic, having heard conflicting reports as to the nature of the coal at Padrun. It looks as if we might have good hope that in other places hardened coal may be found among the hills.

P. A. Galt tells me that he has already instructed his local agent to report upon the authentic, and yr. verdict will probably make him commence operations in a field which promises to

Well.

The markings on the stone are more mysterious than those on L'Hourens's, for there is not even so defined a crescent and star, unless the semicircular marking (near the right hand side in the sketch), with the small cross shaped indentation above it be taken as a crescent and star.

I have not yet seen yr.
Father

but shall try to find him today -

I am going to have a small lecture campaign to recruit for Emigrants for the Spring

Canadian "Einwanderung" -

Believe me, with many Thanks for your letter
