

In Flanders Fields

In Flanders fields, the poppies grow
Between the crosses, row on row
That mark our place: and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved, and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The Torch: be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

John McCrae

There are lots of trees and flowers and the birds run riot all the time: larks and nightingales everywhere.

Speaking of larks reminds me of the enclosed → it has had a (I say it modestly) surprising vogue, and has been a good deal copied.
It came out in Punch last Decr.

The mail is just ready, so I abridge. My love to you both, and I look forward to the happy days when I shall see you.
