(Letter to Dr. Cushing)
(handwriting)

13, NORHAM GARDENS,
OXFORD.

Dear Cushing

'Tis sad to hear of your good fathers death, but he had a fine life, with nothing to regret, and he was spared a long illness. You must have been a great joy to him - a son after his own heart. What a remarkable record for so many generations. It is a great thing to come of such good stock. I am rejoiced to hear the good news about Wood - do give him my regards & best wishes. What a fortunate thing that you operated, and took the risk! It is too bad that Edsall is not to go to St Louis. Look over the ground carefully. You have such a grip on the East that I can understand how loth you must be to go beyond the Mississippi. But there are plenty of good fellows there.

I am pegging away at my Lumleian lectures. - Angina pectoris, trying to put together my private experiences. Allbutt will send you in few days the Pepys memo Magdalene College Cambridge. I was there on the 23rd - P's birthday, when they have an annual gathering. In the absence of Lord Grenfell I had to respond to P's memory - & fortunately had enough to say something. Such a delightful occasion. If A. does not send it - let me know. I will send mine. Are you coming with the Surgical Club? I have written to Crile asking them to give me a day - a lunch in Hall at Ch.Ch. & a prowl about the Colleges would be a pleasant diversion. Grace is well. Ike comes tomorrow for a 'leave out' day. He is very happy at school. Love to Kate & the angels.

Yours ever.
