Dear Dr. Cushing,

The life of Osler is running my vacation. I haven't had much leisure time of late and so the volumes remained most of the time on the shelf.
But now that I have torn myself away from medical matters, I find myself living with Osler most of the day and also of the night.
If I do not return to work as requested as ^{is} usually the case you will know the pernicious influence that is to be blamed for it.

Apart from the general disinclination I have for strenuous physical effort, which you will recall having me heard talk about at the lunch table, I find I so much more fun reading these pages that you so interestingly put together

Sincerely

Samuel A. Levine
