Dearest Edward

I had a beastly letter from you today. doubtless I deserved it - I'm afraid you have taken my letters too seriously - It was unfortunate that all those groundy letters reached you in Vancouver all at once.

I suppose I contained myself for six weeks, when I expected you home & then had to do a little 'growling' to somebody - when you did not turn up.
I certainly have felt terrible this autumn - but apart from that try to be thankful for my nice husband & children, It does not seem to occur to the family here that I might be tired & miserable, & certainly I have had my share of relations this autumn - & So darling although I'm afraid I have made you miserable by letting you know too much how miserable I have been without you, though I assure you my letters have not begun to convey to you how sad my feelings were, God alone knows that. I can only ask you to forgive me<sup>3</sup> for writing you a little too much - After all it is not an unpardonable sin to tell your dearest husband that if he

to come home, that you are lovely & that etc etc - Your letter to me this afternoon made me feel so badly that I have been Squashed ever since - I made up my mind that you would never want to see me again - Edward dear I have not grieved much about feeling punk & I have not grieved at all about all the write I have done to help you <sup>or us</sup> - I have only quoted a little because you have been away for so long. & you will simply have to forget about it - I did not intend writing to you again - but your letter just finished me - I did not know I had been knocking you etc I did not even realize that my letters were of a growly nature - I thought they were quite chirpy except me ~~me~~ or two -

I have been writing accounts all evening, & feel a little more encouraged & hope to have a fairly interesting report for you - - I have put all my heart into working out things to please you while you have been away dear man - & I don't think I can be much but happy when you come back - so please forget that I was impatient about your trip -

With love for your humble & wayward child
 Lois.
