Dearest Aarachu,

Your letter well received - I fear I can give you no address far father as he moves each day, I will I hope be home early next week. The last letter I had was from Philadelphia, & he says Mr McDonald is full of kindness & introduces them as "his three sons" is not that amusing - Three family brothers!!
Each day that all goes well here, we feel more comfortable about Woffy - but Dr. Stirling is to examine his eyes - there is something he may see, or not see, at the back of his eye, that will give them an idea about what may be wrong in his preceous head - It is some comfort that in such an attack, the child himself is perfectly unconscious - & unmade of any distress.
I have just got an I will tribute to Trafalgar's festivity next Thursday - But what may be before then who can say - you might try giving one washing to Mrs Snuck - though I don't know any such person as Mrs Tuckey's sister - at least you might ask her what she will charge - also you will ask aunt F - what she thinks. It is very unreasonable I think, but Lily was on the whole satisfactory, though sneaky, so if you cannot do better, you had better give it to her meanwhile. If you did not give the drop, the well is in good order this year Tucky sh^d clean it out at once, I mean the one near the cellar, & use the water while it is so good.

Be sure you wear warm clothes while it is cold -

Much love dearest, from a tired & stupid
mother
