

McGill University,

Montreal, July 28th 1887

My dear Sir,

In answer to your question in yours of the 22nd inst I may refer you to the last edition of my "Canadian Geology" in which you will find references to very valuable deposits of iron ore in the County of Peterborough in Colchester and in Kings. These ores are in formation older than the Carboniferous but not so recent as the coal beds and in the vicinity of limestone and other materials useful in the manufacture of iron.

With regard to the structure of the bed measures there occur in various places and are probably

I value but they have not been presented up to me content as to price then when My manuscript is there the Manufacturer should be faced in the first instance on the with one view of the side view and the the clay markers well to keep a and whatever we

I beg to own you of my name your part with any effort to develop the great my Manuscripts Capital of your note