My dear Doctor

At Mr. Pothingburn's funeral I think you remarked that your hair was inclined to fall out. Some years ago I was subject to a similar trouble - Doctor Fraser gave me a remedy, which not only stopped the falling of the Hair, but largely promoted its growth - As heads such as yours are scarce, they should be well cared for, & if you will try the remedy I give on other page (It is simple, and if it does no good, it will do no harm) - I think it will benefit you -

Doctor Dawson

Believe me very respectfully Yours &c. &c.
William Dockman

Rub in to roots of hair about a couple tumblerfulls, every morning

If head is washed or bathed in Cold water first (throwing with both hands thirteen laves, thirteen is a lucky number!) and then well dried, before applying the remedy, so much the better,

I hope you will not Consider all this, an intrusion
