Dear Sir

I feel persuaded that you will excuse the liberty I take in addressing you on a matter which appears to me must be of scientific interest. There is close to the village what must be I think indisputably ~~be~~ allowed to be the impression of a human foot on the top of an ordinary boulder. The impression is that of the right foot deep and distinct it measures  $9\frac{3}{4}$  inches in length 3 inches across the ball of the foot and  $2\frac{1}{4}$  inches in the hollow or shank of the foot. The sticks with which I measure the length just goes into my own shapen. The outline of the figure is perfect it has the appearance of having been made by a foot of a person running and the foot appears to me to have been covered with a thin moccasin. I am a men type in geology I suppose such things must exist else where in the world. though I don't now remember ever having heard of them, and my boy tells me that he has read somewhere that no human foot print was made & that the reality of which cannot be disputed. I think the reality of this is indisputable. I should be much pleased to hear from you in reply and should you think it worth while to come to see it would be most happy to meet you and to entertain you while here.

Yours very respectfully
E. S. Orr,
