

Hahn is the first
opponent who has come squarely out on my own special
ground of micro-
geology, and he gives the opportunity which I have long wished for, to establish the matter on this ground. It is a

pity however that he was written in so great ignorance of the geology of Ireland & of its mineralogy as that
and I could have
put it before him, Indeed if he had
even read my little book on the Dunes
of Lough he could

Copy to Dallas

causing here avoided
errors on these points, But the questions he raises as to the stirring Anagnite, &c, are good and open lines of discussion which I have withheld. avoided, from fear of comparing the minds of Prologists and Geologists. Please keep some space for me. I shall be very anxious, and shall give you some facts which will be quite news in England. Sincerely yours
W.S. Dallas & J. Dawson