My dear Sir,

I have arranged with the Librarian that any articles you may wish to have stored in preparation for your exhibition, may be placed in one of the reading-rooms of the Library, of which he will keep the key. There will be room for cases of ordinary size, so that the articles need not be unpacked till wanted, and the room is quite near to the Hall.

Any persons bringing up objects or parcels, may apply to the Librarian, Rep Chapman, or in his absence to the Janitor, Mr Hamilton.

With regard to your kind invitation, I shall be happy to be present at the Anniversary, and if called on, to say a few words; but I feel that it is an occasion on which the principal part should be taken by some of the gentlemen you mention or others connected with literature and typography rather than with Science, though this may well also acknowledge its obligations to the art of printing.

Yours truly,

W. Dawson
