Letter.

University Coll. Bristol.
25 May 1897.

Dear Sir,
other things being equal a scientific man with considerable technical knowledge & especially Mathematics & Engineering would be preferred by the Council. On these points you would stand a fair chance of success. - The Council however hope if possible to get a man whose name is well known in England for scientific work, and the "Ideal Principal" should not be wholly dependent for income from the College. The Council will look to the Principal to advance the interests of the College out of doors amongst the public, as well as in the work. - I shall hope to see you a candidate for the office. -

I am, yours faithfully,

Edward Stock, Secretary.
