My dear Dr. Dawson

I think that an interesting paper could be written upon the topic - "Man's place in Nature" I send you an article from the Review with that very title. Of course you would not go over the same ground, nor would your own views coincide with all of Prof. Leconte's. I should be very glad to receive such a paper from you in the course of the spring.

I hope that everything in Montreal is prospering.
My brother (who formed part of the Princeton delegation to your city last fall) gave me such an interesting account that I regretted very much not having gone on.

Remain

Sincerely yours
