Church of the Strangers,
4 WINTHROP PLACE, NEW YORK.

Sept. 19, '89.

Sir J. W. Dawson;

My dear Sir: -

In behalf of the Institute of Philosophy, I write to learn if, for the honorarium of $100 (which is all our poverty authorizes us to offer), together with a life-membership in the Institute, we could induce you to prepare a Paper to be read, or an Address to be delivered, before the Institute, sometime during the coming Winter or early Spring, in the City of New York.

It would be a great service, and I do most earnestly hope that you may be inclined to accept the invitation. The subject may be any topic in our line of work, and you know what that is.

Let me hear from you, at your convenience.

most respectfully

Yours

Charles F. Deems
