2nd May, 1890.

Dear Sir

I have pleasure in sending you by this mail a few pamphlets, and one or two notices of your paper, containing the fullest notices of any which have appeared in the Scotch papers.

The printer has fairly well carried out the writer's instructions in regard to the pamphlet, with the exception of the heading of your paper.

"With the permission of the author, and of nature," it should have been; but presumably the printer thought the present heading includes this, which is scarcely the case.

Mr Barber of Cambridge, (noted (incorrectly), has just sent me his paper on Pteryctes, and enquires about Specimens.

I have replied "that the specimens were in Canada, and having asked you to return whatever specimens you may wish, I can scarcely say anything about them, before again receiving them here."

Specimens from the result of Prof. Peckham's examination of them, that it is very unlikely the Barber would be more successful. I would be guided however by any suggestions you might be pleased to forward me with.

I trust the pamphlet correctly represents your W.S. and being met with your approval and remain

Yours very truly
James Keio
J. W. Dawson Esq.
Montreal.
