Blainey.

2 Sept. 1892.

Dear Sir

It has just dawned upon me, that my absorbing interest in these old world plants, has perhaps blunted one's sense of proportion in regard to the fitness of things; and that you may possibly be heavily wearied of the whole matter.

I would be very sorry indeed to trouble you with more specimens, if this were so, there being a goodly number, including the Sycopogon.

Yours

Courtesy; several from my petriol, and one large slab from St. Lawrence.
Should you care to see them I would be a pleasure to me to send them, but I cannot at present to send them otherwise.

Before the Stearns stop running, I have forward the Leptodermis slab, and perhaps a few fishes for Mr. Pennington if he cares to have them, but these are merely a good, as they met with on former occasions.
