My dear Sir,

I was very much pained to hear of your illness, & sincerely trust that a winter in the South may restore your strength, & that the time may pass comfortably & happily with you.

I must confess that I am disappointed at losing the pleasure of seeing you this winter & of listening to your lectures. This however must be considered as only delayed for a season & until with restored health you feel able to take up you work once more.

In the meantime I can only wish you a pleasant winter and speedy recovery.

Remain

Yours very truly

Augustus Lowell.
