My dear Sir William

Will you excuse a note in pencil, as I am only able to half sit up in bed.

I promised Mr. Fairclough that I would write to you, as I am sure my dear Father would have gladly done on his behalf.

Just of course to say what Papa thought of him.

He was very fond of him, &

Thought very highly of him -

He is a most enthusiastic teacher & a very hard worker.

I have often heard my Father say that as a fellow worker it was a pleasure to have to do with a man so thoroughly a gentleman in all his instincts.

He & his wife, who is a nice, very nice little woman took a kind personal interest in the students & often had them to their house -

I don't know that I can say more & I hope you will excuse my writing to you about this, I have not been accustomed to meddle in these matters; but when appealed to as my Father's daughter, by one for whom I know he had a great regard, I could not refuse -

I am getting better -

With affectionate greetings to Lady Dawson & yourself

Believe me

Yours very sincerely
Sybil Wilton -

Miss Wilson
