my dearest Auntie

Jinie's letter will have prepared you to hear that dear Jessie had gone to her rest. She fell quietly asleep at 7 o'clock on Sunday morning. She was perfectly conscious till the last. Quite aware that she was going home. It had been a quick reunion with dear Father, had it not? you will, I know, excuse this wee scrap, and feel very weary still, with the condition waiting. From Wednesday till Monday, I never undressed, I only had two hours' sleep, out of each 24.

It seems a life-time, now, since you were with us:
how many changes can be crowded into a few weeks.

With much love to all

Ever dear Auntie
your loving niece
Ellen.
