My dear Lady Dawson,

I feel so anxious that you should know something of what - In the Damon is like, that I send you by today's mail a photograph of him. It was taken recently and is good so far as the features go but - he looks rather more stern than usual.

To help your imagination still further, his hair is very grey at the temples, his complexion is dark with rather a colour and his eyes clear grey. I hope you will like to have the photograph, but I thought perhaps you would. The wedding day is drawing very near and we have been very busy. I am all ready and have almost nothing to do this week which is rather provoking as I know next Monday & Tuesday will be such terribly busy days; but we cannot begin to arrange the house too soon. I am glad to have a few quiet days with Mother before I go. She is keeping very well and bright and my hope will not feel the excitement too much for her. We expect Mr & D Mr Scott and Mimmie and her husband on Tuesday and hope to be all very happy together.

I had a very kind letter of congratulation from William, the other day which I would like to reply to if I were certain of his address. When writing him would you kindly thank him from me for his letter, in case I do not find time to write him soon. I hope you are having a better dinner than we are here, as it has ruined almost every day.
Mother writes with love to you and all the family and they are

Thank you for the letter
I will write him
soon
