My dear mother,

I had the intention of going to Montreal tomorrow to pay you a visit, but having been since Monday more or less under the weather & nursing a cold or some form of influenza, think it best to abandon the idea. I am now I think fairly on the mend, but have been very unwell for a few days, with Nothing particularly the matter but a feeling of weakness.

With Jan, I trust that everything is going well, was particularly that both father & I myself are in good health & not adversely affected by the return to colder weather.

I got W. to come & dine with me last night & found him to be in somewhat better heart & looking well. He had had a talk with Davies about some features of his work & seems to have been able to inform him to some small

Extend about it.

Yours

George
