

CrowSTONELEIGH,
ROCK FERRY.May 29th

My dear cousin

I have waited till Carrie's return before writing to thank you all for your great kindness to her. She enjoyed all the time she was away but I think, more of all her visit to you. She says she never saw anything like the kindness of people in America. I don't think we would have seen her with our automobile, but for her

Rock Ferry
St. Louis
destitute condition as regards clothes. The women were endeavouring to get some care of them, & the hot weather made matters worse.

We have had such a storming day, it has almost blown the Ways of the posts. Gray thing looks lovely, & today (Royal Oak Day) the oaks are heavy with foliage. Health does not always occur from fine weather though. You Scott has been sick all for the last three weeks, & is yet scarcely out of danger. The

congestion of the lungs.

Now Maggie has had a very long time of vomiting, she would not hear of a nurse, but Cassie has gone north to help her. I hear you have your wandering boy home again.

We were very glad to see him as he passed but perhaps he had not time to call.

Mr. Crow is taking Maggie of me to Norway next month, I say taking us, because the idea is entirely his own.
We are to go as far as the North Cape to see the wind-swept tower, but I look forward with more pleasure to the swords. Carrie says your husband talks of joining again to the East. Mr. Clew says he will be delighted to give you passage to Troy if he has a steamer going, when you require them. I hope it will be before very long, especially as you cannot go on East by herself. I think Carrie has written to this week, so you will not need more news of her.

Please give my love to Anne if you have some party in which Alice & Maggie join & believe me ever Yours affectionately
Jane Crook
