

New Haven

Tuesday, P. M.

Anna + B. J. Basily
in New Haven

Dearest Mother,

Acc. 1443

We have accomplished the first-stage of our journey, we had to change cars twice yesterday, & passed within full view of all Maudie's building at Northfield, if I had known we should do so, I wd certainly have stopped over there, but must try & arrange to do so on our return, if not hurried home for any reason. This is a very quiet-comfortable old-fashioned kind of place, just what I should have injected, this morning B. woke up with one of his bad heads & there was nothing for it but to lie down or keep out of doors so, as the day was sunny & warm, we ran down to the sea shore on a train, & spent a quiet morning there, it was quite comfortable sitting on the rocks on a sheltered place & I picked up a handful of shells which I had promised Eva to do, if I found my self near the sea, & which I shall send in a little box to her.

Alit - 57 - we went to call on Mrs & Mrs Breese who were most kind to us - when a student here & with whom he has kept up a friendly intercourse ever since, we found they had gone to Algiers for 3 months but spent quarter of an hour with two daughters they know Mrs Keyser very well her father or brother was an old family friend of Mrs Breese - & they knew we were in some way connected. Is it not odd now people know each other better when had dined with them.

It is raining now & a gentle & spring-like manner

The new Roman Room is quiet & comfortable but every thing appearing well - worked & seemed more the specimen of the state we had at breakfast that was on your letter the very well done after

If you want an actual problem - I was till you was clearing an actual problem - I was pained your case & went completely away my leaving you, I finally regretted my not having to provide & being you back & something for a serious paper, that must have a green background, & a process process as pattern, I thought this was not to write - but when I wrote you, & my scientific the well paper had a lack of of this side - the green, & there was a papers - but - but - but - I thought it I thought it - a article - I thought it was that - I - I - only seems as if you

I have been reading the Coburn & Bussey with very great interest. It is really wonderful.

I hope Miss Baker will be compelled to herself to do only necessary work & very severe household tasks, & is inclined not to be too thoughtful for herself now to all the children.

I will write to some of them tonight but leave only a few minutes to do this mail.

I hope Miss Baker keeps all right with love to all

With love
Aunt

Miss Baker to Miss Baker
The Westwood Family that you have heard of us