London June 23.

My Dear Anna.

I had a very unexpected visit the other day from a very unexpected person, whose name unless I told you I am sure you could never guess. It was Mr. Proudfoot, he has been in London about a month & has now gone to Edinburgh for a little while, he took Papa's & Mamma's address with the intention of calling. He is going to spend the summer on the Continent then so to Montreal for a time & if he does not like it then will go back to Boston. I hope the marriage will have gone off well. by the time this reaches you, or rather I suppose it has already taken place. In about ten days, now I hope to be in Scotland I will be very glad for London is getting hotter & hotter. Especially our laboratory which was $88^{\circ}7$ yesterday, not counting the fumes.

With very best love to yourself & W. R. & E. I suppose this will find you in the process of jacking up for Murray bay
George.
