

with her a most close Confidential religious Conversation. She is seeking after the truth, without early instructions to come to his aid. Just as she left I am, the table maid, got a letter from home saying her Mother is seriously ill & telling her to come home (to Kingston) immediately. She will go either tonight or early in the morn. I am very sorry for her grief & sorry also to lose her.
Should her Mother die, which appears likely, she will not return but remain to keep house for her family. Sophie Brown also called today kindly asking if she could visit any of the Jews for me. Had I the addresses of the Bedford's & those three old maids that knit I will call them to one or two others I told her of. Papus lecture last night was most excellent He spoke for an hour & a half I think all wd have listened for an hour more without being weary. The arrangements were not well made the hour 1/2 p. m. was too early, & the place, the American Church, out of the way & gave it a denominational & religious lecture aspect unfavourable for a general audience nevertheless the attendance was good, but not what it wd have been had it been in a public hall. This will I hope cross a letter from you so you need not write again. I please say when you are coming home. Papa is longing for you. I shall not say I am because it is selfish. With all love. I have got your Cabinet portraits & will enclose one. Again accept love from Mamma Keep well for this end of your journey Kindest regards from Mamma

Jun 1891 Lady D. to Anna in Company with Cap & Mrs. Scott late Saturday night I was to have early Monday morning & as Mrs. Mothers had changed her mind to have Mrs. Thomas without seeing one she drove up in her travelling gear on Sunday. She intends to spend the winter with her Grandpa (Hon: Joseph Home) & will give us a visit as she returns next Spring.
The weather has been intensely cold for some time until today it is misty & late in the afternoon sleet is falling.
My whole afternoon has been occupied by a visit from Mrs. Johnson. I had planned to go out but I shall not regret the interruption for I have had
