The long day is over we arrived here at 7 P.M. have had a good time with our new daily piece of tin ordnance I wonder how we ever could have fancied that a days railway travel should be supposed to tire anyone.
It has been hard frost with sleet than on the trees, flocks deep of beautiful icicles hanging every ledge of rock & water falls cascades like Caucasus in swathings of ice. but long metal hat made stials stamped on either renewed several times by the way has enabled us to make the distances quite comfortable so far as warmth is concerned. Now here we are in our first station Aty & soon must go to our first station bed. but as we talked of home & drew ones there by the way we discovered that this will be our last opportunity for writing to reach you before it was too late to have this mail especially as the
