

Apologies for remarks about untidy house
working on plans with Taylor

Mentual

June 29/96

Dearest Love,

Just a line
before going to breakfast.
I am still sleeping at our house and hope to do so for several nights at least.
I was sorry that I said
anything about untidiness
of basement; for after all the whole thing is not serious and could be put right in an hour.

Yesterday I took all my meals at the Taylors and in the evening went up to see the Wolsons. Mrs M. seemed pleased at your having written to her and was anxious to know all about Poppy. Poor little Chap! How I hope that Medicin air may do something for him. The more I think of the matter the more I believe that the trouble is constitutional rather than accidental. His general physical condition being good is of course in his favour & life out of doors sometimes works marvels.

I am to meet Mr. Taylor at his office at 11.30 and shall probably be with all day after that. If free from interruptions we should accomplish something.

I miss you all so much, dearest, but do my best to be cheerful.

Bernard.

I shall send some Hellebore for the gooseberry bush by post.
