MONTREAL.

March 24th/1900

Dear Anna,

We are delighted to hear that <sup>you arrived at</sup> your destination safely last evening - now that we doubted that you would ultimately see to Burlington, any more than we doubted that Ladysmith would be ultimately relieved, but you were a long time sitting there.

Now that you are there

I hope you will not regret the choice made of a haven of rest.

I am glad you have so comfortable rooms and trust the table may be passable.

The lecture went off very well. I took Bernard down with me and he enjoyed himself immensely and thinks that students are all fully nice fellows — especially when they supply unlimited ice-cream and cake. Con. was enjoyed for a basket-ball match at the High School and so I could not take him.

I have about decided to sell my Monmouth Telegraph stock. I am sorry that this should be necessary, as it yields about 5 p.c., but the demands of the family will make it necessary unless I learn very shortly that my salary is to be increased. I do not like more other stocks like

Montreal Telegraph is low, but that seems to be generally the way when you want to sell.

We are having a lovely day here and I am just going out to the mountain with Clare and the little people. They are all well and have been as good as good can be. They are calling me now so I must stop writing.

Your loving husband
Bernard
