

82 Victoria Street
Montreal.

December Third.

Dear Mrs. Harrington:

Though Mr. Caldwell and I hesitate to intrude at so sacred a time we cannot refrain from trying to express something of the profound sympathy we feel for you and for all your family in the great Loss and sorrow that has come to you.

Our hearts just yearn to be able to do some thing for you - yet we know our helplessness - and can only trust that in some mysterious way, the sum of the strength of all the great sympathy that will be going out to you, to which we beg to add ours, will help you as much as any thing human can.

— My all possible comfort, dear Mrs.
Harrington, be yours and your children's.
— Though there is so much I would like to express I must say only - again, how deep is our sympathy.
— My sincerely yours
A. H. Caldwell.
