Mrs B.J. Harrington,
295 University St.,
City.

Dear Mrs Harrington,

At a Meeting of the Faculty held on December 3rd, the following resolution was unanimously passed and I was directed to convey the same to you:—

The Faculty of Applied Science desires to place on record its deep appreciation of the valuable and useful work done in this Faculty during the long professional career of the late Dr. Harrington. Dr. Harrington was one of those rare personalities, who during the whole of his intimate relationship with the various members of the Faculty, was always noted for his kindly and genial bearing, and for his efforts to advance its interests. Dr. Harrington was not only esteemed by the members of the Faculty, but by the students and also by all with whom he was brought into contact. Those who attended his Lectures, could not fail to be inspired with that uprightness of feeling and constant seeking after truth which were such distinguishing characteristics throughout the whole of his career. Many of those who were largely influenced by Dr. Harrington have attained high positions in their professions and one and all feel that the
