Dear George,

I blame myself for neglect of writing to you, and now write with some uncertainty whether this will reach before you leave. We were all greatly pleased to see the little recognition you received from Her Majesty, and still more by the kind references to it, as so well deserved, which came on all hands, from Lord Stanley, who

Well, though it is a momentary rainy region, I hope you will take time before leaving to see some of our friends. There seems nothing special to hurry your return.

Our circle is breaking up. Anna and children went to meet the Monks, Mamma, Eva & Hope
are to go about Thursday next, I must remain a fortnight till sometime in July, and have

No end of work and
worries on hand,

I received the copy you sent of your Geography. I have seen no notice of it yet anywhere. I think Miss Millam might do something by pushing the sale here. It looks very well but I have hardly had time to look at it and show
it to a few friends.

Rankine may reach
London in time to see you, but we have not yet heard of his arrival.

Ever yours
M. Dawson
