

cleverest man he had ever met"

Recd
Oct. 13. 92

Oct: 3, 93

Dear Doctor,

I send you your "Ex Doc's" which we have I fear detained a long time but the copies from Washington have only just arrived.

Everyone who has anything to do with the Case asks almost daily when you are coming back and your absence is much deplored, but I hope ere long you will be here to assist at the conferences which were attended by the full strength temperature of the big room would be somewhat arctic in the winter

It is a very pleasant room looking into the park and there is one square table in it which we are endeavouring to reserve for you against the other applicants for it.

Please do not trouble to answer this

Yours very sincerely

Arthur Broude

Maxwell sends you his best duty and remembrances. He wishes me to tell you that Webster in explaining to Lord Rosebery and Sir C. Russell who you were referred to you "as being quite the of the company are really most imposing.

I had a long letter from Stanley-Brown a few days ago, most affectionate and speaking in the highest terms of Macoun, but studiously guarded as regards the seals.

The Correspondence published at Washington 1887 which caused us so much anxiety is among the books now sent home by Herbert and I am glad to say That the reference in our case about the 3 mile zone is correctly stated.

If Maccom does not accompany you when you come over which I trust he may, would you mind giving him $5 for me, which I will repay you when we meet.

He has very kindly invested that sum for me in skin bags.

Maxwell and I have moved out of the big room into the one which

Lord Salisbury's Private Secretaries used to have, as we thought the