Dear Rankine,

When I added
the little postscript
to my letter of yesterday, I had scarcely had time
to read your thought,
I scarcely understood
what you say of Crank and Roddick.
When I spoke to them
last year at your request, they expressed the utmost friendliness

and good intentions,
they said however
that to do anything
if we were pay that you should be well,
for neither in the hospital nor in the case of individual
patients could they forward your interests
otherwise; and they are men who will not take the responsibility.

ability of advising a man about. Might
a night not succeed.
Why they had not
answer your letters, if they got them, I do not know. Perhaps they thought what they told me was enough, and this
I communicated to
you at the time.
Ganey however matters
are how much as they were, except that I

supper the Hospital staff is filled for the present. If I see Crack or Roddick I shall try to find new matters
one. I am not now on the Hospital Board.

Kutsumu the Lee was here when I was in Boston, and told Bernard he had seen you. He seems greatly impressed with you personal gifts as a medical man, as exemplified in your attendance you gave him. The same thought is in my almanack leaf for yesterday which I enclose.
Your "Vein of Gold" wants to be opened. Ever yours

Wm Dawson
