DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF LAWS CONFERRED WITH IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY UPON HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES

Large Number Of Students Welcomed Prince Yesterday — His Royal Highness Delivered An Excellent Address—McGill's Honor Roll Was Fittingly Referred To—Acting Principal Adams Delivered Address Of Welcome — Grenadier Guards Band Furnished Excellent Music.

McGill University had the honor of conferring her honorary degree of LL.D. on His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales yesterday noon, in the Convocation Hall of the Royal Victoria College.

Many of McGill's undergraduates, men and women, lined the street leading from the gates of McGill University, where His Royal Highness reviewed the boy scouts of the province, to the steps of the R.V.C. At 12.25, the Prince's car, accompanied by the cars of his suite, turned out of the McGill gates, headed towards the Convocation Hall. As the Royal car drew up at the foot of the stairs leading to the R.V.C. a cheer broke from the assembled students. The band of the Prince's guard of honor, which was drawn up in the street in front of the College, played the first six bars of the National Anthem. His Royal Highness stood at the salute, in front of the statue of the late Queen until the strains of "God Save the King" had died away; then he entered the doors of the building, accompanied by the Faculty of the University. As the slight figure of the future King disappeared through the doors of the R.V.C., the good old McGill yell was given by the men lined up on both sides of the stairs. His Royal Highness turned to see what the uproar was, then smilingly entered the college.

At noon the Convocation Hall was already filled by members of the senior year, graduates and visitors. It was raining outside, and naturally the hall was somewhat dark, necessitating the use of the electric lights. However, this rather sombre effect was greatly brightened by the scarlet tunics and gold epauletts of the Grenadier Guards' band, stationed in the

At five minutes past twelve the members of Convocation entered and the heads of departments and of the affiliated Theological Colleges took their places on the platform. The exquisite coloring of their gowns at once relieved the room of its former atmosphere of dreariness, which had taken possession when the band retired to the rear of the gallery, practically out of sight.

Not till twenty minutes to one did His Royal Highness wive. He entered the room accompanied by the acting Principal and the four Deans. During his progress to the platform a continuous roll of drums was sounded. When he had taken his place in the centre and behind the table on which lay open the registration book, spontaneous cheering broke forth. In fact, it would have been strange if it had been otherwise. His Royal Highness looked so extraordinarily handsome, standing there in his LL.D. gown, which accentuated the goldness of his hair.

Dr. Adams, the acting Principal, sat on his left, while Dr. Moyse, the Vice-Principal, was on his right. As soon as all were seated, Dr. Fraser invoked Divine blessing, after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated aloud by all. Acting Principal Adams then read the following address:

To His Royal Highness Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom, Duke of Cornwall in the Peerage of England, Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew, in the Peerage of Scotland, Lond of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland, K.C., C.M.M.G., M.C., etc.

May it please Your Royal Highness-The Governors, Principal and Fellows of McGill University beg to extend to Your Royal Highness a sincere and affectionate welcome They deeply appreciate the honor of Your Royal Highness' visit and the distinction you confer upon the University by graciously accepting its Honorary Degree. This memorable occasion naturally recalls to the minds of many who are present the visit of your royal parents in 1901, when the University had the honor of conferring on them the same degree prior to the formal opening of the Strathcona wing of the Medical Building.

The University feels that the time of Your Royal Highness' visit is most opportune in the history of the Empire.

It has been remarked by an eminent historian that in the eighteenth century Great Britain seems to have acquired almost half the world in a fit of absence of mind. The potentiality of newly won possessions that then seemed too remote for real union remained long undiscerned. But now that potentiality is revealed, and a distinct feeling of Imperial nearness is developing. The marvellous acceleration of travel has made more than ever available that personal knowledge of the constituent parts of the Empire which is of absolutely vital moment to its sound and stable development. It was Your Royal Highness' conviction of that truth, Sir, that prompted you, by visiting Canada, to ascertain what Canada really means.

The University rejoices in that Your relation gives it complete Royal Highness' visit follows closely freedom, and has caused it to be reupon the victorious conclusion of a garded, in a sense, as the national war that threatened to overwhelm the University of Canada. Empire and, through its prolonged course, taxed the material resources Highness will, on your return, convey and the spirit of the Empire to the ut- to our illustrious Sovereign and our termost. Canada promptly responded beloved Queen its most dutiful reto the appeal for volunteers with loyal enthusiasm and unflinching determination. In that temper her men fought Highness' most happy memories - a and fell. And the University is proud to remember that Your Royal Highness mingled with Canadian officers and men amid the perils of the front, to which your innate sense of duty led you. Your Royal Highness' frank and gracious disposition always made your presence very welcome and stimulating to them, and to those who have returned is now most happily given the grateful opportunity of welcoming you in their own land.

As might have been expected, McGill University, like all universities, rasponded to the Empire's call with alacrity and whole-heartedness. The ideals that were at stake in the war are particularly such as appeal to academic thought, temper and tradition. A noteworthy feature of the war record of the University is the first offer of a distinctive Medical Hospital made by any Canadian University, which was gladly accepted by the military authorities. Of the past and present students of McGill more than two thousand five hundred went to the front. In all, well over four hundred won military distinction.

The tale of our dead is three hundred and twenty-five, the Honor Rolls on which their names are inscribed will ever be the University's most precious and stimulating possession.

As Your Royal Highness is aware, McGill University is of recent origin, and the fact of its growth in a young and rapidly developing country has made its influence all the more potent. It will celebrate its centenary in 1921. Among the most prominent universities of Canada, it stands alone in being almost absolutely dependent for its existence on private benefactions. owes its origin to the private endowment of a leading Montreal merchant whose name it bears; its development, to Montreal citizens imbued with the founder's spirit. McGill University is thus at once the creation, as it is the pride, of the City of Montreal. This

The University begs that Your Royal And it hopes that your visit spects. to Canada will be one of Your Royal memory alike inspiring to you and to the country that has exhibited such intense loyalty to your person and to the throne.

After the address, Dean Moyse presented His Royal Highness for the conferring of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Dr. Nicholson then placed the hood upon his shoulders. After shaking hands with the Prince, Dr. Adams ended the ceremony with the customary Latin oration.

His Royal Highness then made a most charming and effective speech.

Mr. Vice-Chancellor, ladies, and gentlemen:

I consider it a very great privilege to receive the Degree of Doctor of Laws at McGill University, and it is interesting to know that I follow my father in this respect. Although the University has not quite attained its centenary, it has done splendid things. Some of the men who have gone forth from it have been famous not only in Canada and the Empire, but throughout the world. It has a great war record. Its members came forward in the most inspiring way. Six companies were formed at the beginning of the war. From these, 400 went to Princess The 7th and 13th Siege Batteries were also raised, and No. 3 General was a hospital entirely manned by McGill men. The Honor Roll is very long, numbering 300, and I wish to express my sympathy not only to the University but to the relatives of the fallen. My next visit is not so far distant, for I expect to be in Canada frequently. I only hope that the future of McGill University will be as successful as its

When His Royal Highness had finished speaking, three lusty cheers and a tiger were given, which were followed by the McGill yell. The band then played "God Save the King."

Immediately afterwards, the Prince left the Convocation Hall. The ceremony had only lasted fifteen minutes, but it is one that will not easily be forgotten.

At precisely one o'clock the doors of the Royal Victoria College were thrown wide, and His Royal Highness emerged from the Convocation, escorted by acting Principal Adams and Vice-Principal Moyse. Cheers greeted the the Prince, appearance of while His Royal Highness chatted with the University authorities at the head of the stairs, the yell was repeated. From the minute the Prince appeared until he was about to enter his car, the cheering was kept up. Just as he reached the foot of the steps, the band again played "God Save the King," and His Royal Highness stood again at attention. Then he steppel into his car, and was hurried away to the Baron de Hirsch Institute, followed by the cheers of the students of Old

Address delinered by Dean C. E. Moyse

To
Lieut.-Col. Herbert Molson, M.C.,
Montreal

Sir,—
The McGill Graduates' Stadium Committee has the honour to ask you to accept this address on the occasion of the dedication of this stadium to the memory of your brother, Captain Percival Molson, M.C., who graduated in the Faculty of Arts in 1901, and was elected a member of the Board of Governors in 1913.

The record of Captain Percival Molson in University sports shows that he was one of the very best all-round athletes that McGill University has ever produced. In his undergraduate days he represented his Alma Mater in all forms of athletics, including football, hockey and track and field sports. Yet, in thinking of Captain Percival Molson it is not so much his successes in the athletic field that dwell in our memory as the spirit of manliness and generosity which he brought to, and did so much to foster in, University sport.

In the early months of the war Captain Percival Molson qualified for his commission, and assisted Major G. C. MacDonald, M.C., to organize the Second Universities' Company for overseas' service. He joined the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in France in October, 1915. So severely wounded was Canadian Light Infantry in France in October, 1915. So severely wounded was he in the course of the sanguinary struggles at Hooge and Observatory Ridge in June, 1916, that nearly a year passed before he was fit for service again, but for a man of his temper there was one place only—the front line. He rejoined his battalion with the rank of Captain, and with the distinction of the Military Cross. A few weeks later, on July 4, 1917, he fell in action at Avion and was buried in Villers-au-Bois Station Cemetery. Throughout his military career Captain Percival Molson displayed an unselfish patriotism and single-minded devotion to duty that inspired all those with whom he was brought into contact.

Knowing the value of sport and sportsmanship in building up a healthy body as well as in forming character, Captain Percival Molson resolved to signalize it by the munificent donation of seventy-five thousand dollars towards the construction of this Stadium. It bears his name and perpetuates it forever—a worthy monument to a man who displayed in the practical energies of academic and civic life qualities of the highest manhood and citizenship. This gift is accepted by a thankful University and acclaimed by its grateful students.

FRESHETTES HUMBLED BY SOPHOMORES

Impressive Ceremony R.V.C.

GHOSTLY SCENES.

R. V. C. '23 Suffer Great Indignities When Initiated By the Sophs.

A casual pedestrian passing the R.V.C. on Saturday afternoon might not have noticed anything unusual was. going on inside those stately walls. But, once inside, it behooved one to fishes' eyes were forced take cover, for the Sophs. were initiating the class of '23.

At the appointed hour, the Freshies, suitably attired, and decorated with green ribbons, took their places. The mercy, rent the air; and one by one, Sophs., masked and clad in white, as each victim was branded with a redthe emblem of perfection, stood hot coal. For those who survived this solemnly around while their victims ordeal, grapes were provided, which answered to the roll-call. One by one, could be obtained by pushing one's face moans, each verdant one was required the beauty of the verdant ones, their with her head. This done, she was "Cleeky Freshie," in bright green. ordered to exert her lungs to the utmost extent by giving the Freshie yell:

"Maw, Maw, Maw! Paw, Paw, Paw! Rah, Rah, Rah! Milk!"

Next, in preparation for her fate, she shrinkingly shook hands with Death. But the Sophs were merciful, and noting the pallor of their victims, they decided to end the Freshies' sufferings. So, in a dark, mysterious corner, filled with the wails of departing souls, a rope was placed around the victim's neck, and she was told to jump. Some, diffident as ever about going first, held back. Mercilessly, however, the Soph. pushed, and -- the faint heart sank into a bottomless abyss. Sophomores had decided that for some members of class '23 even this was not enough, so they were commanded to walk the plank. Then, thoughtful as ever, their captors realized that after so much exertion the Freshies stood in dire need of refreshment. ingly, ample portions of worms and mouths of the hungry ones. Freshies were led down, and still further down; the atmosphere became warmer; wailing voices, begging for the Freshies were called out, "bogged" through a lew inches of flour. As and tied, then the fun started. First, worms, fishes' eyes and flour were not to the accompaniment of wails and considered a sufficient improvement to to roll a basketball down the corridor faces were stamped with the words,

Then they were locked in the gym. until the lordly Sophomores should be pleased to enter and teach them the McGill and R.V.C. yells and "Hail, Alma Mater." The Sophomore president read the rules, and, in order to relievethe monotony, the Sophomores decided that they would be entertained by the Freshies. The youthful ones displayed such poor talent, however, that, unable to stifle their groans any longer, the Sophs. ordered them to have done, and took them up to the Common Room, where refreshments were provided. On a small table in the centre of the room stood a huge green and white birthday cake, with "Freshies, '23" written on it, and one lone candle burning in the middle. The food promoted a feeling of good-fellowship between the members of the two classes. The Freshies cheered the Sophs., the Sophs cheered the Freshies, and after a few dances, everyone sang "Hail, Alma Mater" and went her way in

A WIXLU SING AI STRATHCONA WALL

Y. M. Administration Intends To Hold These Functions Weekly.

At 8.45, accompanied by plane and violin, the assembled students started singing the old hymns. Until 9.30, without a break, the song continued. At 9.30, the noses of the singers told them that Cap's coffee was ready, And the destruction to the "eats" certainly showed that the efforts of the Y.M.C.A. organization in that line were appreciated. At 9.45 singing was resumed, and lasted until a few minutes to ten.

This second mixed Sing was an absolute and unquestioned success. The administration of the Hall is so encouraged by the splendid last night that it is their intention to make these mixed Sings a weekly fix-

R.V.C. UNDER-GRADS. HELD BIG MEETING

Miss Hurlbatt Addressed Society On English College Spirit.

INSTRUCTIVE SPEECH.

Question Of Common Room In Arts Building Brought Up.

A meeting of the Undergraduate Society was held yesterday, with the president, Miss Nichol, in the chair. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved. Miss Nichol introduced Miss Hurlbatt, the honorary president of the society, who had a few words to say to the meeting.

Miss Hurlbatt, after regretting that her absence from college at the beginning of the session had prevented her addressing the society until its new members had already tasted of college life, expressed her confidence that the other members of the R.V.C. faculty had given them a welcome in her stead. Having remained in England so much later in the year than was her custom, Miss Hurlbatt had been enabled to examine the new spirit in English col-The fact that money, on the whole, was more widely shared, had led to a more universal and better education. The attendance at preparatory schools had almost doubled, and the same increase could be noted in the registration figures of the public schools of England. This same belief in the products of education had found expression in Canada, and in the R.V.C. could be noted in the great increase of enrollment for the first year. It was to be hoped that the same thuth to ideals would be maintained and the burden lay more especially on the upper classmen to interpret the traditions of the college and to use their influence in emphasizing the best.

That it is possible to pass through even such an upheaval as that just over, without a change of values is an immutable fact. The students of the Royal Victoria College are the exponents of the value of a certain type of education. They must maintain the truths of these standards and not regard college as a means of social opportunity. A community, not, understanding and interest is much to be desired between the faculties, the classes and the students of the University. Carlyle had laid down the precept that "a man the heavens ever praised is sufficient to himself." Yet the many working together achieve much more than the individuals working alone.

After Miss Hurlbatt's speech, a letter was read from Mrs. Walter Vaughn, thanking the undergraduates for their gift during the last session.

The question of participation in the Victory Loan was next discussed. As a great many of the undergraduates had already been approached on the question in their own homes, it was decided that no canvass of the students would be made, but any wishing to secure Victory Bonds may apply to the secretary of the Undergraduate Society, Miss Norah James, who will attend to the matter.

The question of the necessity of a common room in the Arts Building for the women students was next brought up. This is a need that has long been felt, as the library is at present the only resort of the unhappy co-eds between lectures. The motion expressed the wishes of all present, and was heartily endorsed. The meeting then adjourned,

* LETTERS OF A FRESHMAN. *

Strathcona Hall,

The McGill University, Nov. 3rd, 1919.

Dear Pa,-

Well, Pa, I guess I should have written sooner, but, gosh all hemlock things seem to happen here just like Brown's cows - one after another! Par exemple (this is French like they learn up to the Faculty of Art. You want to spring it on the boys up to Day's store, next Saturday night), par exemple, to-night there is a meeting of the Roofers' Club here in Struthcona Hall. It appears from what Austy Heron says, that they call it the Roofers' Club because they raise the roofpretty good, eh, Pa! Anyways, the boys sing all sorts of songs and college calls, and have more fun than they do at the Methodist Church Box Social up at home. Austy told me the principle college call here which starts off like this: "Is there anything particularly the matter with old McGill? On no, you can safely make a sporting wager upon that -- Hurrah for dear old Mc-Gill University College!

Say, Pa, is Hank Jones still hankering (pretty good, eh Pa!) to be a boxer? If he is, tell him ! said to take this here Nuxated Iron and lots of it, both external and internal. This is the reason. I was strolling along St. Catherine the other night and I seen a big sign which same read: "Jack Dempsey takes Nuxated Iron and look what he done to Willard." This may not mean much to you, Pa, but Dempsey is the feller who put it all over Jeff Willard down to Toledo a ways back, catch as catch can rules. It appears to me that I should tell Mr. Shaughnessy, the McGill Football Coachman about Nuxated Iron. The hovs call Mr. Shaughnessy "Shag" on account he smokes so much of this here Johnny pea-soup tobacco. Of course, his real name ain't Shag at ail. They just call him that for fun like.

Say, Pa, some of the students up here are too dum new. You try to do them a little kindness and they turn on you. Par exemple, when I first come up here, I was told that the most important thing was to pay proper respect to the Soapo ares, and so far I have done it, always taking off my hat and the like, but no more of this for little Si - no Siree! This is the reason. I was walking up the avenue to the Faculty of Art the other day. Just ahead of me walked a Soapomore carrying a lot of books. Seeing the which I catches up to him and offers to carry his books, and what do you think the big stiff said? He turns to his friend and hollers: "Bring out the insect powder, here's another bugback to the tall timbers and the husking bee, Hiram!" Drat it all, Pa, I was so dum mad, I could have bust him one on the jaw-so help me, catfish! I'll be everlastingly hornswoggled if I let any of these here ornery Soapomores give me the merry ha! ha! - ain't I right, Pa?

Do you remember me telling you about this here McGill Union where all the sick Students' exams are wrote for them? Well, Sir, there's an eating room in the Union where they serve meals at all hours and no questions asked. But the worst of it is that this eating room is for men students only which is a dum shame, I'll say she does! It appears that the women studesses want to eat at the Union and there was a movement on the foot to let them do it, but the Royal Victoria College Professors sat down on the suggestion like a ton of baled haypretty mean, I calls it. I met one of the girls who want to eat at the Union the other day and by heck, Pa. if this girl was eating at the Union, I know I'd enjoy my meals a sight better. fact, I don't think I'd waste time eating at all. Drat it, Pa, some of the girls up here at the McGill University ain't so dusty after all, and I may tell you about them later.

Sa Pa, there's great goings on over to the Faculty of Laws. There's going to be a football game right some between the Freshmen and the 2nd. and 3rd, years and I'll be hornswoggled if they haven't got me down as Fallback for the Freshmen — can you beat it? I asked Mr. Hitarious Robertson, the famous scrimmage expert of Laws

'21 to explain the game so me and here is what he gave me. Seeing as I'm one of the Fallbacks, I stand in the rear filed and wait for the ball to dribble over the deadline. As soon as it dribbles over the deadline, I'm supposed to chase it, bring it back and set it down between the goal-sticks. Remember this, though, Pa. As soon as I set the ball inside them goal-sticks, I have to holler out good and loud: "Point for our side - point for our side!" If the Empire don't hear me holler, it don't count at all. I guess I can holler with the best of 'em, eh Pa! I'll say she does!

Well, Pa, its about time little Si was delving into the dusty law volumes. In my next letter, I'm going to tell you about my troubles down to the Court House. Give my best to Ma and the girls.

Over the river.

Your loving son, Si.

P.S.—The high cost of existing up here do beat all. A little government parchment would be jake, as the saying is.

Prediction Disproved

He (after popping the question)—Why are you crying, dearest? Did I offend you by my proposal?

She—Oh, no. dear, it's not that. I am crying for pure joy. Mother has always told me that I was such an idiot that I wouldn't gets even a donkey for a sweetheart, and now I've got one after all.

Discriminating

Artist—Yes, I had a nerrow squeak when I was painting that picture of the Sphinx. An Arab came ap behind me and nearly stabled me in the back.

Friend—What! Are there art-critics in Egypt, too, then?

One of the Best

"Is your husband a good provider, Dinah?"

"Yessum; he's a good providah, all right, but I'se always skeered dat niggah's gwine ter sit caught at it."

Not Convincing

"I am as innocent as a child of the charge of stealing that there hos, Gap!" protested an acquaintance.

"Well," replied Gap Johnson, of Rumpus Ridge, Ark., as I've got fourteen children and am tollably well educated in the possibilities and propabilities of the little casses, I've just say that your denial don't fetch you muth'n' with ma."

OUTPE

UNCLE SALT BASIN - THE CAFE-TERIA.

Come, tumble up and grab your trays, and slide across the floor to where our fellow-students graze. Have you e'er seen before, my friend, a place so full of life? Behold, year Freshie there who juggles peas upon his knife and never turns a hair! Say, ain't it great to feel your face along with all the bunch instead of hunting up a place where you must eat your lunch apart from other coilege men? And once you've eaten here you'll never see Ham-Ands again -you'll shun them all, don't fear.

Hey, can that stuff, the hash is mine! Don't start to act that way! -As I was saying now, it's fine to come in here each day and take your meal-wow, boy, it's hot! and gosh, I've spilt my tea! It seems to me that I - Great Scott! that pie was meant for me and here you've eaten every bit. Say, now, some people seem to think that they alone are it -hi! shoot across some cream!

But, seriously, the fare is great and you can bet I'll come each day to eat and lick my plate and make the business hum!

Dear Sir:-

The person who opened my locker in the wash-room of the New Medical Building and removed my Cunninghams Dissector, Vol. I., is hereby gratefully thanked for not also removing my instruments and other belongings. Furthermore if he and the person who took my Vol. II. Dissector from the same room will write and tell me the hours when they are free. I will call on them and divide up my instruments between them, as I feel that they might as well have my whole outfit.

UNCLE SALT BASIN - IT'S ABOUT TIME.

I've written many Quips, I wis, Salt Basins by the score, and now the simple truth is this-I can't write any more! I'm every man upon the earth there are some jokes concealed and it depends on what he's worth just how he makes his yield. If he shoots off the whole blame bunch within a week or two I needs no brains to get the hunch that he'll be quickly through; but if he spreads them over years and waters them at times and drops them slowly in your ears concealed in foolish rhymes it's plain to see he'll last a while, but even then, you know, there'll come a day when this poor guy'll be forced to gasp out "Whoa!"

Now I have written, off and on, four years for this here sheet and since my salad days are gone it needs no prophet's feat for me to see that week by week my jokes are getting stale so that the readers have to seek to find the points, and they'll agree with me that now's the time to shut the tap off tight and to explain at last that I'm about to say "Good-night! !! THE OTHER DAY.

Right before me on the street Once I saw a classy queen; Now her hat was simply sweet. And her dress as well, I ween.

There was something in her walk Seemed familiar to my eyes. So I started in to stalk This entrancing little prize.

Well, she walked on like a streak And I burned the ground with pep Until, after 'bout a week, I had just to go one step.

When a motor car came by ('Twas the Dean who clasped the wheel)

At a speed of ninety mile, Fairly made my senses reel.

And the mud-guard caught me fair On the eyebrow-pieces flew! Skull and car, wheels, nuts and hair As my corpse was rent in two.

Then with one tremendous roar Up I jumped and promptly woke With my head upon the floor.

DELTA SIGMA SOCIETY HAS GOOD DEBATE

Sophomores Awarded Decision By Prof. Slack.

THEME HANDLED WELL.

Argued On the Merits Of a System Of National Education.

A meeting of the Delta Sigma Society was held on Wednesday afternoon, with the president, Miss Mawdsley, in the chair. The minutes of the former meeting were read and approved. Miss Mawdsley than announced that Mrs. Irwin was very kindly offering a prize again this year for the best original entries, in the form of poety, essays or stories. No subjects requiring research work should be chosen, but rather those giving scope to originality.

As the meeting was to take the form of a Freshman-Sophomore debate, the president announced the subject, which was: "Resolved, That there should be a system of National Education for Canada." The affirmative was upheld by the Misses Murray and Kerr, of the First Year; and the negative by the Misses McPartlin and Shatford, of the Second.

The first speaker of the affirmative, Miss Murray, said that for a country to be prosperous it must have national ideals and purpose in common. Every one must work together towards the same end. The best system of education is to unite the country underfederal control, allowing for local conditions. The need for state control is shown by the lack of education in the Province of Quebec. This lack would be eliminated if there were one standard enforced by the State and which everyone must keep to. In the Western States, from forty to fifty per cent. of the people are foreigners, while in the City of Montreal one person out of every seven is foreign born. people are often indifferent to Canada's progress and development. These people must be made loyal citizens, and this can be accomplished most effectually by educating the children to be good Canadians. The contact brought about by the National Education system, solves the problem of racial differences, and, if carried out, National Education would be one of the greatest bulwarks of the Empire.

Miss McPartlin, the first speaker of the negative, began by refuting some of her opponent's arguments. Miss Mc-Partlin said it was not at all certain that foreign children would become Canadian citizens of the first rank merely because they had lived under a system of National Education. system was tried out in Ireland and found to be sadly lacking. The most progressive county - Ulster - was tied down and its development retarded through having to suits its pace to that of the other counties. Education, the speaker said, was as yet an experiment and not a science. If the national system were put into force now, education would have to remain as it is, whether good or bad. There is a great difference between unity and uniform-Uniformity is the adhering to one plan, while unity is used of the qualities of the heart and mind. this system of National Education bring up Canadian Canadians? Compulsory education would be set back by national control. Many prominent Roman Catholics advocate compulsory education as long as this education is not wholly secular. On the other hand, if the schools were run by the State, and, consequently, were secular, the Catholics would strongly oppose the move ment. The schools are not the only We have also two nation builders. other great influences - the Church and the Press. If the national system were adopted, much wrangling would ensue between these two powers, and the atmosphere created would be injurious, causing ill-feeling amongst the scholars. Then we have the great question of religion, which must by considered in connection with national system. Religion would have to be eliminated entirely from the schools, and the study of the Bible, both as the revealed will of God and as a literary work, would have to be omitted. As the present prepares us for the future, we are brought to wonder if it would be desirable to have all our citizens moulded similarly, on a narrow uniform system? Also, would it be at all possible to establish a National Education for provinces so widely differing. Language and religion must be reckoned with. If the British government were obliged to force this system of education on Canada, would we not be the first to realize that our government was autocrutic and self-assertive. as the German government has been. The friction which would necessarily come about if National Education were established would lead to instability in politics, which would be bad for the country.

Miss Kerr, the second speaker on the negative, stated that National Education would increase the economic productiveness of the individual. In France, where National Education is enforced, the religious question is solved by the teaching of morals in the schools instead of religion. Moral religion is not the cold and unsympathetic thing some people imagine it be; on the contrary, it contains the best points of all religions. There is no reason why people who differ religiously shouldn't tolerate the religion of others. France, whose system of education is most satisfactory has five fine schools, as well as technical schools, for men and women. In the training schools for teachers their board is paid by the government. The professors and teachers are paid by the State and they work for a commor aim and ideal. In the United States there are also five schools, and any diploma obtained in one State is of equal value and standing in any other part of the States. Miss Kerr then stated some of the results of Nationa. Education. Splendid educational advantages for all children must mean good citizens for the future. The industrial advantages are great, because of the fact that all the men in workshop and factory have had the same methods taught to them, and are trained in the same way. schools are the best possible means of securing unity and sympathy

The second speaker on the negative always a burning question. In these Miss Shatford, pointed out that state education is not the same as National Education, therefore the United States cannot be used as an example of the latter. Moreover, the educational system in France is not as uniform as i may seem. Teachers have only a bare outline of the work to be done. details, such as what text books shall be used, etc., are arranged by the teachers. There has been in the French literature before the war a marked strain of agnosticism. This is perhaps due to the small place religion occupies in the schools. Federal control of schools is not desirable. The government has much on its hands already including the Grand Trunk Railway! Education would become the subject of partisan disputes, and changes in education would follow each change of party. Moreover, a centralized administration could not be applied to education, which is a delicate matter, demanding consideration of many factors By the British North America Act, each province is forbidden to do away with separate schools. Canada has been promised her separate schools, and the government of Great Britain would not be justified in establishing National Education. As far as better educational results are concerned, most of the proposed reforms could be carried out under the present system, and a certain standard of perfection is required of our government schools at the present time. Many people claim that if the teachers in our schools were God-learing men our pupils would feel Senior and Freshman Years their high influence. Unfortunately, children are not sufficiently susceptible for this, and the influence has to be forcibly administered. The national system of education would not have the the scene of inter-class basketball support of the people, for we have more games, when the Seniors played the than ample proof that the Province of Juniors, and the Sophomores the Quebec would never accept secular Freshmen. The games were played schools. Good-will and harmony should yesterday at 4.30 p.m., amid much not be sacrificed to the theories of edu- singing and cheering. cational writers. The plan of educational uniformity is like that of the same, the combination of the Junior Socialists who wish to divide the eart 1 team excelled that of the Senior team; into lots of a certain number of acres yet the Seniors managed to keep ahead for each man. Difference of race must in the number of points. Though be considered. Let us fit the pattern both teams crowded a great deal, to the individual and not the individual there were few fouls, and only one system of education for the whole jumps to catch the ball, and hangs on. country which each state carries out in With Hope, Eleanor Cox has very good a smaller form. Religion, of course, is combination. A. Douglas on the days progress and advancement depend upon unity and toleration. Surely the educational problem is sufficiently great to merit the government's att.ntion, and there is no better time to adjust them than now.

Local control versus federal is a troubling one, but the training of those who will rule our country is surely to be regarded as important, and suitable training can't be given by a local board. We must have a broader outlook to govern our educational policy.

The judges then retired to make their recision, which was given by Professor Slack in favor of the negative. Fr. f.

Slack also gave the debaters some helpful criticism, and congratulated them upon their successful effort.

The meeting then adjourned.

R.V.C. PLAYED KEEN INTER-CLASS GAMES

Semi-Finals Take Place On Nov. 26.

GOOD MATCHES.

Prove Victorious.

Once again the old R.V.C. gym. was

In the first half of the Senior-Junior double foul. The Juniors have in Miss Murray, in her rebuttal, stated liope MacIntosh a very good wing. that the United States has one large This is evident by the fact that she in the second half of the Senior-Junior game the playing was much keener, and more exacting. was a great deal of crowding and fouling, but, to counteract this, the passing was well planned; and the field shots were better in aim, rarely missin gthe basket. During the latter half of the game H. Higginson and J. Spier, of the Junior team, displayed good combination. The Seniors made a great many quiet, low passes.

As the score will show the game was a keenly contested one; a game in which each student put forth her hest.

In the Sophomore-Freshman game evidence of more practice could be detected than in the Senior-Junior game. Both the Sophs and the Freshies entered the game with the intention of being victorious, and the result was they played with all their energy in both halves. The combination of both teams was well thought out, and there was little fumbling during the whole game.

The centres, M. Fry and D. Russel, being of the same beight, afforded great amusement to the onlookers, in that both would catch and hold the ball every time it was thrown up beween them.

At the end of the first half the score was 13-10 in favor of the Sophs, who kept the lead till near the end of the second half. The Freshies, suddenly realizing that they were not ahead, began to play a hard, swift game. They put forth the best passing, and catching of the afternoon, stuck to the ball, and finally came out victorious.

One imposing and interfering factor in both games was the large pillars which were always in the way. Not only were they in the path of the girls, but also in the path of the ball. When the latter came into contact with the pillars it would rebound, and the result was the wrong team would catch the ball.

Notwithstanding this one drawback the games were intensely interesting to all present.

The full score is as follows:-A-Seniors, 15; Juniors, 12 B-Sophs, 17; Freshies, 19.

The semi-finals will take place on Wednesday, November 26th, when the Seniors will play the Freshies ,and the Juniors will play the Sonhs

SONG FROM "DONE CHEWIN," BY LORD IRUN.

The R.V.C.! The R.V.C.! Where poetesses dwelt and sung, Where rose the chant of I. J. P. (Long years ago, when I was young), Whence came the contributions bright, That cheered us many a winter's night!

II.

The R.V.C.! The R.V.C.! The home of peaches, yea, and prunes-

Tho' now he dwell afar from thee, Fair theme of all his youthful tunes, What student ever can forget The lovely dreams that there he met?

III.

A queen sate with a pensive brow Leside a desk, removed from men, And poems in thousands lay below -And all were products of her pen, And in the "Daily," where were they?

Ah, where were they and where are you

Fair poetess of long ago? No more resounds the plaintive mew That charmed our gentle readers so. Yet tho' the coeds have been dumb The worst, mayhap, is yet to come.

At a meeting of the R.V.C. Athletic Association on Monday last it was decided that Fancy Skating should be revived as a college sport. To make it a success it needs the support of every girl in R.V.C., those who cannot skate as well as those who can skate well.

This theatre under normal conditions, with every seat occupied, can be emptied in less than three minutes. Look around now, choose the nearest exit to your seat, and in case of disturbances of any kind, to avoid the dangers of panic, WALK (do not run) TO THAT EXIT.

The Box Office is open daily between the hours of 9.30 a.m. and 10 p.m. Our telephone number is Queen 6376.

Patrons will confer a favor on others by not leaving their seats during the course of a scene or act unless unavoidable. By observing this request you will avoid inconveniencing both the performers and the audience who are interested in the play.

It is the desire of the management that courtesy be the keynote in this theatre, and the management will appreciate it if any discourtesy or inattention on the part of the staff will be reported by patrons.

Physicians, nurses or others who expect to be called during the performance can be assured of receiving their message if before taking their places they leave a memo of their seat numbers at the Box Office.

In every play there is a time to laugh, and a time for silence. Very often the many have to suffer for the thoughtlessness of the few who persist in talking above a whisper during a quiet scene or giggling when no one but themselves know why. Out of consideration of the many the management has decided to appeal to the few, who through thoughtlessness spoil the enjoyment of the play for others around them, to remember that because they have purchased a ticket they are not entitled to disregard the comfort or enjoyment of others in the theatre.

Ladies occupying Orchestra Stalls and Balcony are requested to remove their hats.

September 11th,

DEAR PATRONS,-

On return to your midst allow me to thank you for your patronage in the past, and in anticipation of your future support.

I trust that the feeling of goodwill extended to me last season will continue to grow even more firm during the present one.

Now that the Summer is being left behind, I feel confident in saying that you will again look forward to the efforts of my players individually and collectively with interest, and do your best to stimulate their progress during the present season.

Without your co-operation success is impossible, therefore I appeal to you again for your liberal patronage and support.

Certain changes have already been made in policy, these no doubt have already attracted your attention.

One, and to you, probably the most interesting of all, the reduction in prices, introducing 50 cent seats on the Orchestra Floor, Dress Circle at 35 cents, and Balcony at 25. Matinees will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday only, at prices of 15, 25 and 35 cents, every seat booked in advance. The Standard of entertainment will in no way be allowed to suffer because of this cut, it is hoped that patrons will carefully note the effort that is being made to give them good shows at a minimum price of admission.

I have reviewed a large number of plays during the Summer recess and many novel and varied productions are on the list for early production.

An extensive list will shortly be submitted from which I shall be glad to have you select your favorites, at the same time I am always pleased to present any play that it is possible to obtain.

Remember, dear patrons, I consider it both my duty and pleasure to cater to your wishes, it is the only possible way to success, and at the same time when producing it is just as easy on many occasions to stage one of your popular selections as it is to give a theme of my own choosing.

The suggestion box will be in evidence again in the Lobby, please use it and so let us become more intimate with each other.

Apart from plays, any suggestion for comfort of my followers is always welcome and appreciated.

I am giving you good, wholesome entertainment suitable to all ages, I know that you, personally enjoy it. Good! do me one big favor more, recommend it, boost it strongly to your friends, bring them along with you, and let us all spend a profitable and pleasurable season together.

Will you do this?

I thank you in anticipation,

Yours sincerely,

JACK SOANES

ALL NEXT WEEK

THE INTERNATIONAL SUCCESS

A PAIR OF SIXES

(BY EDWARD PEPLE)

A SCREAMING FARCE COMEDY IN THREE ACTS.

"A PAIR OF SIXES" ran for over a year at the Longacre Theatre, New York, and excited such furores of fun and praise as have never been exceeded in the history of Metropolitan theatricals.

In what has been termed "OUR NATIONAL INDOOR GAME" a pair of sixes is not considered much of a hand, but the affair arranged by the Author, Ed. Peple, backed by a Queen of Hearts, has created a Farce that has been declared "a royal flush" in the matter of fun.

It has proved to be one of the biggest Farce winners in the history of the English speaking stage and the success which it has won both in London and New York has been duplicated in every other city where it has been seen.

How would you like to be the sweetheart of a young man who is the half partner in a perfectly healthy and successful business, and then visit his partner's wife to find your fiancee employed there as a butler. Or, how would you like to be the wife of the young man who was the other half of that same business and find that because he has won in a game of cards, he must conduct the entire business, which demands so much of his time that he is unable to be at home more than one or two evenings each week.

Or, would you like to be the stenographer in the office of the firm comprising the same two young men, and have to resign your position, because each one says he is the senior partner and each one will discharge you if you show preference for the other, and you don't know how to please them both.

FIRE SWEEPS THROUGH UNIV. OF MONTREAL

Disastrous Outbreak Destroys Imposing Building.

W GREAT LOSSES.

Many Valuable Books and Medical Specimens Have Been Lost.

Our sister University, the University of Montreal, which was formerly known as Laval, received a staggering blow last Saturday night, when fire destroyed the large building on St. Denis Street. Dean Birkett of the Medical Faculty of McGill has spoken to Dr. Boucher, the acting dean of the same department at the Montreal University, and has offered him the sympathy of our college and what assistance it may be able to offer.

The imposing building was constructed in 1895, and was modern in all details. It housed the Faculties of Law, Medicine and Pharmacy. At the time o the fire, about 200 students were in the edifice, as some elections were taking place. About 9.15 the first warning of the catastrophe which followed was given. The building was soon cleared, and in twenty minutes all the fire apparatus in the sity was on the scene.

The cause of the fire is not yet definitely known, but it is thought that it was due either to a short circuit in the elevator shaft or to spontaneous combustion. However, it soon spread to the Chemical Laboratory on the third floor.

During the fire, the roof fell into the cellar, carrying the ground floors with it. Part of the rear wall also fell in, but the front wall, which was of very heavy construction, was left intact. An explosion in the chemical laboratory blew of part of the roof, and this room burned an hour or more after the rest of the fire was under control. The damage is unknown, but the insurance was comparatively small, and there will e almost a complete loss. For a time he fire threatened to spread to the mall church of "Our Lady of Lourdes," which is situated on St. Catherine Street, just in the rear of the destroyed building. The firemen, however, protected this, and while it received no damage from fire, it was damaged by water.

There was a movement on foot some time ago to erect a new structure on Laontaine Park. The authorities communicated with Sir Lomer Gouin, inquiring if the Province would help out in the erection. The Sulpician Fathers had donated $5,000,000 toward this end, and other subscriptions netted $75,000, No decision was arrived at.

There were twenty valuable pointings in the building, and it is thought that at least half of these have been destroyed. On the fourth floor was situated the Pathological Luseum with many valuable specimens, including some wax representations of skin diseases. It is not known how badly this was damaged, but it is possible that some of the collection will be saved. Both the Law and Medical libraries had many old and priceless volumes on the shelves. These were protected with linoleum, and the damage done has not yet been estimated. The Law library was valued at $120,000, but many of the books and manuscripas are of such an age and nature that they cannot be valuated.

The dissecting room and the chemical laboratory were completely destroyed. The former was the life-long hobby of Dr. Delorme, and was fixed up at his personal expense. Hence the work of thirty years was destroyed in a night. In the chemical laboratory were many results of research work carried on by Dr. Baril, the vice-president of the Chemical Society of Canada. These heve been completely lost.

There will probably be difficulty in securing accommodation for the lecture and laboratory classes, but it is quite likely that for the former the school of Hautes Etudes on Viger Square and the Sulpician Library on St. Denis Street will be used. The chemical laboratory classes will be held in the Polytechnic School on the same street. Both of these buildings are situated near the discrepted edifice.

There was a meeting held last night to discuss what will be done, but at the time of going to press no further information could be obtained. The "Daily" will publish details as they become known.

OEDS PLAY SEMI-FINAL BASKETBALL

irst Year Defeat Seniors— Juniors Defeat Sophs.

CLOSE SCORES.

uniors Will Play First Year In Finals Next Wednesday.

Yesterday afternoon the semi-finals r the inter-class basketball chamonship were played off in the Gym., esulting in a victory for the Preshies gainst the Seniors, and the Juniors gainst the Sophs. On the whole, all ne teams showed evidence of good, ard practising beforehand, and the ames proved much faster than last eek's games.

In the first half of the game between ne Seniors and the Freshies, there was great deal of crowning and fumbling. s a result of this, the fouls on both ides were numerous. Throughout the irst half the Seniors kept in the lead, nd due to the true aim of M. Goddard, nany splendid field shots were made.

The Freshies, on the other hand, cored well in free shots, and were very ortunate in having M. Leggatt as a orward, who seldom missed her shot. As for the centres, G. Moody and D. Russel, they were well matched, and played a hard game throughout. The combination of the Senior team was good, but that of the Freshies was even better. At the end of the first half the score was 13-10 for the Seniors.

The second half of the game was much more interesting. Both teams were on the alert, and kept their eyes glued to the ball. The passes were nade more carefully, and with greater skill. A very good underhand pass of G. Moody's was lost by the forwards of the Senior team, and the Freshies thus took the ball, but lost it a moment later turning out to sec. by a foul for overguarding. The Seniors won another free shot by this play.

When the score became equal, being 19-19, the excitement was at the highest pitch. In the remainder of the game the Freshman forwards played a spectacular game in spite of the splendid guarding done by H. Nichol and Q. Each girl was on the de-Savage. fensive, and played her best, making splendid team-work, and especially good was the playing of D. Russel, the Freshie centre, who seldom lost the ball, once caught, and then by lightning combination the ball fell to the forwards. It was in this manner most of the shots wehe made, due to coolness and skill.

When the whistle blew, the Seniors had put in the last field shot, but the Freshies had already beaten them with the score 27-24.

The second match, between the Juniors and Sophs, though a wellplayed one, was not as interesting or fast as the first match. There was a great deal of fumbling on both teams. and also there were too many fouls. The forwards managed to make some fine field shots, especially those on the Junior team.

From the beginning, the Juniors showed better combination, making some remarkable passes, which usually meant a goal for their team. Throughout the two halves the Juniors were ahead. In the second half the Sophs picked up considerably, and there were good passes made, especially between the centre, M. Fry, and the wings, V. Zealand and K. Newnham.

The most exciting period of the game was near the end when E. Mansfield, field shots and a free shot. Soph forward, made three successive altered the score considerably, but not sufficiently to bring the Sophs in the lead. As in the last week's game, H. MacIntosh and K. Godwin worked splendid combination together.

The game ended with the Juniors in the lead, as they had been throughout the game.

The final scores of both games were: Seniors, 24; Freshies, 27.

Juniors, 21; Sophs, 16.

Next Wednesday, at 4 p.m., the finals will be played off in the Gym. That is, the Juniors vs. the Freshies. This will certainly prove the best game of the season, and will be well worth while

JUNIORS FELL BEFORE EVER READY FRESH.

Best Basketball Game Of Season At R.V.C.

SCORE: 22-16.

Second Teams Of Same Year Play — Juniors Defeating Freshmen.

The best game of the basketball season was played yesterday afternoon. when the Freshmen played the Juniors, and beat them by six points. All through the inter-class games the Freshies have played spectacular games, and have never lost one of their matches. Not enough can be said about the zeal with which the Freshies have turned out to practices, and not a little of the credit is due to their captain, Dorothy Russell. It is a wellknown fact that the forming of a First Year basketball team is a very intricate and sometimes impossible matter, in that the girls come from different schools and have never played together. Yet the Freshies with their captain have surmounted all difficulties, and now play a splendid, fast and clean game.

In the beginning of the first half, the Juniors kept well up to the Freshies. They played a hard game, in which there were few fouls. J. Spier and N. MacIntosh made the first good passes, and throughout the game they continued to make their passes clear and worth while. Both teams played up well, using all their energy and their common sense. Few fumbling passes were made. Through the first half the teams were well matched and the result was, when the whistle blew, the score was 10-8 in favor of the Freshies.

The second half proved the better half, in that both teams were even more wide awake. The centres, Janie Spier and D. Russell, play a well-matched game, and send the ball in the right direction every time. There were one or two amusing scrambles for the ball when four girls fell on it, thus making a double foul. As in other games, the six mattressed piliars proved a great interference, as all badly-aimed balls come in contact with them. The result was alway unexpected, no one knowing who would catch the ball. When the second half was almost over, the Juniors played up splendidly, but the Freshies were too quick for their opponents and thus won the day, and, more than that, they won the Interclass Championship. The final score was: Juniors, 16; Freshies, 22. Besides the championship game, the Seniors and Sophs met in a friendly match; and played six to a team in preference to seven. In the first half. the teams showed themselves to be well matched, but the Sophs fell off in the second half. M. Goddard, forward of the Senior team, played her usual excellent game, seldom losing a shot Several of these shots were thrown from a long distance and were accurately aimed. Though the Sophs bucked up toward the end of the game, they stood little chance of beating the Seniors. The final score was: Seniors, 31; Sophs, 17.

Good Play in the Second Teams.

At 2.15 yesterday the matches were played off between the second teams of the Junior Year and First Year. From the beginning the Juniors put forth better team work than their opponents. In Helen Cockfield they had a splendid forward, who had good combination with D. Campbell. The final score speaks for itself: Juniors, 18; First Year, 4.

The second match, between the Sophs' second team and the Freshies' third team, proved more interesting. There was a great deal of scrambling in both halves and also many fouls; but the game was keenly played. The Sophs were victorious. The score was: Sophs, 21: Freshies, 10.

Many of the girls on these teams have just learned to play basketball, and with the unparalleled coaching of Miss Cartwright they will soon be excellent players.

R.V.C. JUNIORS BANQUET.

Last night the Junior team entertained at dinner in the R.V.C. in honor of the victorious Freshman team who carried off the Basketball Championship yesterday afternoon. The table was most artistically decorated with red streamers and banners with a newly initialed basketball as a symbolic centrepiece. A splendid dinner was enjoyed by everyone and the scene was pervaded by the fine sporting feeling existing between the players and all concerned. The dinner terminated with a few brief speeches and roof-raising cheers for the teams and Miss Cartwright-whose tireless energy and splendid coaching has meant so much to all your teams. Dancing in the Common Room followed, and thus brought a happy evening to a happy close. The guests were: The Freshman Basketball team, Miss Cartwright, Miss Q. Savage and T.

DELTA SIGMA HAD ANOTHER GOOD MEETING

The Sophomores Won In a "Rigmarole" Competition.

PROF. LAMBERT JUDGE.

Freshmen—Adventure.
Sophomores—Fairy Tale.
Juniors—Romance.
Seniors—The Supernatural.

The introductions will be prepared by members of the executive, the Juniors chosing the topic for the Seniors, the Seniors for the Juniors, Sophomores for the Freshmen, and Freshmen for the Sophomores, and should take at least a minute to read. Each speaker is to then take up the story in turn, speaking for about two minutes, and the fourth speaker is to understand that he must bring the story to a conclusion. Judges will then award a prize to the most successful team.

At the fourth meeting of the Deita Sigma Society, held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the president. Miss Mawdsley, was in the chair. After the minutes had been read and approved Miss Mawdsley drew the attention of those present to Mrs. Irwin's Competition, and made a special appeal for colunteers from R.V.C. '21. The president then read the rules of the Rignarole Competition, which were as ollows:

1. Each year was to have a team of our members.

2. Each speaker could talk for a eriod of two minutes.

The Sophomores were the first to compete. Seated around a realistic nitation of a camp-fire, on McGill ashions, in a darkened room, they receded to elaborate into a fairy tale the introduction having been readoud by Miss Mawdsley.

"Princess Priscilla sat weeping on the bench by the sun-dial, oblivious to the beauties of the little garden. The birds sang sweetly and clearly, still she paid no heed. Gradually one song separated itself from the others, attracting the Princess' attention as it approached, and looking up she saw beside her a queerly-dressed old man with a silver flute. The old man, who appeared to be some kind of a fairy, urged her to tell him her troubles."

Here Miss K. Newnham continued: "At the first sound of a human voice the Princess had for an instant hoped that the beloved object of her grief was the speaker but what was her surprise on raising her head to behold a fantastic old genileman with a merry eye and a flute. She decided to confide in him and to implore his aid. told him how her cruel and arrogant father had forbidden her to marry a certain young nobleman, because he had at one time been poor. The mysterious stranger played in reply a song, telling her how to escape that night from the palace - a song in which the birds and flowers seemed to join. They told her to steal downstairs for her turret, and if she came at precisely the right hour, she would find a little loor party open, through this she could make her escape."

"At midnight," went on Miss T. Rough, "the Princess stole down the stair, fitted the little golden key in the lock, and opened the door with a slight grating sound. She realized that she was going on a great journey, and that there would be many difficulties, but that she must go. A soft wind stirred the air but there seemed to be an evil under current. Once, seeing a snake in the path, she started, knowing that such an omen foreboded evil. On she went, through a great forest of old oaks, the very strength of which made her realize her own weakness, and made her pray for strength. Not all her sorrow was for her lover, some was for her little brother who, at the age of two, had fallen from his nurse's arms and had suffered from that time on. The king Hated him, and his existence was concealed from the outher world."

Miss D. Sharples continued: "At last the Princess came to a hut in the woods. She saw the little old man at the door. He wanted her to drink some of the Water of Oblivion, but she would not do so intil she had brought her father and little brother back with her. She returned home and brought her father with her telling him she wanted to show him something."

From here, Miss R. Shatford continued: "When the king saw the old man he recognized him as a prince whom he had wronged. The old man recalled to him the fact that the king had usurped his right. He said that he had no desire for worldly power, but wished only the happiness of others. He wanted the Princess to marry her lover and the king to become reconciled with the prince. With the aid of some herbs the old man succeeded in curing the prince, restoring his reason. After the marriage of the Princess to the hobleman, there was a celebratin which lasted 70 days, at which all the countryside were present. The Princess and Prince were greatly admired, and the people were pleased to see that their king was kinder and that he had for an heir an intelligent and amiable young prince."

Misses D. Matthewson, E. Hohand. K. Godwin and A. Hackett, of '21, 'old a romantic story. The story tells how Frances, a filing clerk in an office, a girl of a quiet and retiring disposition, with a fondness for children and books. but with no knowledge of the ward, having never had any social intercourse with members of the opposite sax. through a mistake adopts a Belgian soldier instead of a twelve-year-old boy, as she had intended. Her difficulties in getting material for her letters to him, and finally his surprise visit to her at the office brought about a happy ending in their marriage. And, by the way, they came to Canada, and are now the proud owners of a poodle dog and a Ford car, and live in West-

The next competitors were the Seniors, who dealt with the element of the "Supernatural." Misses H. Nichol, G. Ewing, H. Davidson and G. Moody spoke in turns. The story opened with an account of how on a clear night at sea a solitary figure, the only passent on the small vessel, was strolling about the deck, fearing to go inside, because of the questioning looks he was sugar to encounter. All at once he felt a "presence" coming towards him, and saw a trail of blood upon the deck,

At this point the first speaker took up the story. It seems that the man was fleeing from a haunted house in Africa, near Pietermauritzburg. The cause of the spostly proceedings in that vicinity was, with the air of the redoubtable Chief of Police and a band of Koffirs, proved beyond doubt to be a gorilla, and the young heroine and her four brothers were saved from insanity.

The Freshie team, composed of Misses L. Kerr, F. Matz, M. Leggitt and K. James, were the last to compete. They related a marvellous tale of adventure, second only to Swift's "Guiliver's Travels." They described how two would-be missionaries discovered a monkey civilization, possessing laws and lay courts, in the heart of an African jungle. The shooting of a monkey by a young English boy, who had lived all his life in the jungle, the capture of the boy's s'sten and our two missionaries by the menkeys, and their trial and final escape, brought the competition to an end.

After the judges had deliberated for a few minutes, Prof. Lambert announced that the Sophs were the prizewinners. From the point of view of style, delivery and subject matter, it had been hard to determine which year was the winner.

Miss Mawdsley then asked someone to move that the meeting adjourn, and everyone made a raid on the prize, since chocolates are quite popular with most of us.

The meeting was the first of its type to be held by the Delta Sigma, and since it proved such a success, we sincerely hope that Rigmaroles will become a regular feature of our society.

The most amusing of the the even; was the staff race. Several corks were thrown into the middle of the tank, and the staff had to dive after them, trying to catch as many as possible in their mouths. Miss Cartwright, Miss Henry, Miss Symons and Miss Christic comprised the staff. It proved a hard task to catch these corks, and Miss Cartwright deserves a great deal of praise for getting two. Miss Christic came second with one cork. Whoever imagines that to trap a cork with one's mouth is a simple matter ought to be given an opportunity to prove his skill.

The next event, a 40 yards dash, was run off in three heats. The first 20 yards were to be breast or side strake, the return 20 yards were to be on the back. Miss A. Douglas came first in 42 2-5 sec., Miss L. Levy came second, Miss Q. Savage, third.

The walking race proved very amusing. It was carried out in pairs. A

E. Lewis were first; E. Dart and A.
McPherson were second.

The next event was the long plunge. This was won by J. Henderson with 43 feet. Miss Douglas came second with 25 feet.

Because of the limited amount of time in which the events were carried out, the relay race was not run off, and the programme ended with stunts.

Q. Savage was the leader, and she did her part well, for at the end very few could follow her. The first few stunts were simple, jumping off the spring-board, or rolling off; but these were followed by hard dives, such as the jack-knife and the back somersault dive.

At one o'clock sharp every one was out of the tank, and at 1.30 all, save a few stragglers, were out of the building.

Not the least enjoyable part of the programme was the picnic lunch which took place in the Common Room at R.V.C. Here, owing to the splendid efforts of Jean Reid and her committee, the hungry but happy swimmers warable to overcome their hunger and f.ed on dainty sandwiches, delicious cakes, buns and biscuits, and to quench their thirst with hot chocolate. By the time every ne was quite safefied — it surely took a long time to satisfy those hungry swimmers — Mis-Alie Donglas, the swimming-party manager, was prepared to present the prizes. Miss Cartwright was called upon to present the first prize to Jean Henderson of II. Year, who had won 13 points. To Miss F. Fitzsimmons Miss Cartwright presented another prize. Q. Savage, president of the Athletic Association, presented the staff prize to Miss Cartwright.

To Miss Cartwright, Miss A. Douglas and Mr. Rose, the success of the party is due. So successful did it turn out that we may be sure of one every year at the least. Among our visitors and witnesses of our swimming meet were Dr. Harvey, Mr. Lamb, members of the School of Physical Education, and numerous undergraduates. We wish to thank everyone who helped make this meet a success, but most of all do we wish to thank the M.A.A.A. authorities for the use of their tank.

Dear Pa:

Well Pa, seeing as they's peace and quiet in our diggings, I'm a going to write you a regular old timer, which same will be the last before I go up to home to have a crack at that old turkey you was telling me about.

Austy Heron is just after going out. He seemed kind of worried like and I asked him the reason and he replied back that he cant understand why they call them babies when they're past forty-three. He told me he had reckoned on studying for an exam in the Faculty of Medicines to-night, but with this worry on his mind, he thought he'd go out and look for his friend John Collins and 3 Star Hennessy. It appears that when a man is good at Athletes, they call him a star. This man Hennessy is so dum good that he's called a star times. He must be a regular bear-cat, eh Pal

Here's a piece of news for you, Palyon heard tell of this here Mr. Shaughnessy, the great McGill Football Coachman. Well, Sir, I was passing through the Union t'other day on my way to the McGill Daily Journal Newspaper office when I seen Mr. Shaughnessy standing around. I went right up to him and says: "Hello, Mr. Shaughnessy."

He answered back: "Greetings, Rube, when did you get in—on the last load of Huckleberries?"

I seen he was kidding me, so I soys:
"I'm Si Whiffletree. You may have read some of my funny jokes in the McGill Daily Journal Newspaper."

"Yes, I did," he replied back, "they're about as funny as the cross-bar of a crutch."

I didn't want to talk too much about my own jokes, so I says: "Say, Mr. Shaughnessy, I was up to the McGill-Varsity College football game."

"Oh, you were," he says, "who left the gate open?"

I let this pass — then I says: "I was sitting in the grandstand."

"It that a true fact," he asked interested like. "Who was the guy with you? I thought I saw somebody else in the stand. Maybe you were the bord who were giving the McGill yell all the time."

I seen he was kidding me again and not having no comeback ready, I says: "Well, so long, Mr. Shaughnessy," and he answered back:

"Over the river, Si. Mind the cross-ings."

Pretty decent of him to talk to me like this, eh Pa. I guess if he hadn't of known I was the feller that was writing the funny letters to you in the McGill Daily Journal Newspayer, he wouldn't have been so affable like. When I told him I was the man what wrote them, he knew right away, ! was a regular feller, Maybe they wasn't fun nor nothing over the Club Initiation t'other nig. I was madder'n a horned toad on acct. what they done to me 3 or 4 times, but in course I cant tell you nor anybo'ly else about it. Just the same, some of these here fellers pretty near got a dum good bust on the jaw, so help mepickled onions! You needn't of worried about my buck and wing, because that was what I give them when they asked me to dance, and even if I do say it myself, what shouldn't, it made one of these here inkstand taneous hits.

Miss Spencer Makes Japan Subject Of Address.

SPOKE AT R. V. C.

Conditions Of Far East Most Deplorable.

At a special meeting of the Y.W.C.A. held in the Common Room, yesterday, at 4:15 o'clock, Miss F. Spencer, a missionary from Japan, gave a most interesting informal talk. Miss Spencer had won the hearts of the six Mc-Gill delegates at Camp Couchicring, and yesterday she won the hearts and admiration of her audience. This was not only due to her delightful talk, but also to her charming manner and personality. As Miss Spencer has spent five years in Western Japan, there was very little she does not know about that part of the country.

Miss Spencer introduced her talk with a charming Japanese bow, and a few complimentary words of that language. She then told how the Japanese women were leading in most of their colleges, even getting beyond the men students. How great efforts are being made in Japan to bring the women to see the necessity of social service, to remedy the bad conditions in factories. Though a law was passel a few years ago stating that no child under twelve could be employed on night shifts, it has not been adhered to, and the result is that these tiny children are worked during the night under appalling conditions. Christian women are needed to stand up against these conditions, in order that the tiny children may live a normal life. Despite the fact that the children work through the night, very little food or recreation is granted them. Their reward is the paltry sum of two and a half cents for selling themselves to their mean employers. These are the conditions that need to be remedied, and Christian men and women are needed to beter them.

Miss Spencer then tora, about the Geisha girls, who are made to keep themselves pretty to please their employers. Every year 200,000 of these girls flock into the large cities, but less than 80,000 ever return to their homes. Of the few who do return, twenty-three per cent., at the least, go home sick with fuberculosis. The employers, the root of the evil, do not care what becomes of the girls, and are only too glad to get rid of them. One man, a Japanese, tried to improve these conditions. He became a Christian, and with the help of some Christian friends, set up a factory of his own, with goul boarding houses nearby. To-day, this is the only factory where the manufactured silk is sent to America without previous inspection at Yokohama, and this is because the factory is reliable.

In explaining how Geisha girls were obtained, Miss Spencer said that people went around to the houses of factory girls, where there were pretty sisters These men spoke to the girls' fathers. telling how if they were sold, the money could go toward educating the sons of the family. The fathers would consent. and the girls would be taken off to the Geisha houses. Here they would be taught to sing and tell jokes, until they lost all their attractions or their voices became cracked. Here we have the real meaning of Geisha - "cracked voice." There are laws stating that if the girl wishes to leave she may, but again these laws are ignored. As Miss Spencer went down to the Geisha district every Tuesday night, it was not hard for her to prove that despite the smiles and pretty faces of the Geisha girls, they are not happy.

During her talk, Miss Spencer told one or two delightful stories, true ones, how Christianity came into and helped several Japanese families. One of these stories was about a girl who had married a school-teacher. After a few years her husband died, and his family took her child from her, and sold all her belongings to bring the child up. The poor wife was left homeless and friendless, till she sought out a Christian catechist, who found a home for her near Miss Spencer. The lonely girl confided in Miss Spencer, tedling of her little sister who lived in the country. This little child had infantile paralysis, and could never go out. After one visit to the poor child, Miss Spencer decided to go out every week to tell her about Christianity. Theregult was that soon the whole family, ...cluding the father, became Chastians, and were baptized. An amusing in cident relating to this story was that which occurred on the day of their baptism. To celebrate the great event Miss Spencer made a large spice cake, and covered it with white icing. This was placed in front of the oldersister to be out; but it was not torched. About two weeks later Miss Siencer visited the family and enquired about the cake, and whether it had been eaten. To her surprise she sw it still uncut, and asking why the had not touched it, she learned that the family took it for a foreign hat. They had never seen an iced cake befor!

When Miss Spencer left Japan tout a year ago, she was asked what she would come back, and how manygirs she would bring with her to teach Christianity. The Japanese girs told Miss Spencer what kind of missimaries or teachers they want. They must be cheerful, patient, broad-minded and not easily discouraged, those who wil stick to their work with good spirit.

At the close of her talk Miss Search emphasized how important prayer is in this world; and how few things will succeed without it. That no matter how busy we are there is dways time for prayer. With another of her charming Japanese bows, Miss Sencer brought her story to an end.

Miss Helen Nichol, president of the Y.W.C.A., thanked Miss Spenor for her delightful lecture, which had touched the hearts of all. After a vioral prayer the meeting adjourned.

It came slowly just at first out of the witch fire glow, tipping the blackness of the kill, a paring of silver, then a sicle, then before a man might catch his breath, a great gleaming beauty of a full moon, in pe with mischie of all centuries.

Mr. Pascoe next showed a unique selection of microscopic slids of pure metals, ferrous alloys and nm-ferrous alloys. Mr. Roast pointed ou how the microscope not only indicated the character of the metals present but also plainly showed, as no chemical analysis can do, the probable physical properties and the effect of such conditions as heat treatment, etc.

In the discussion that followed, Dr. Stansfield pointed out what geat difficulties the metallurgist hat had to overcome in order to use reflected light for the microscopic examination of opaque metallic specimens. He also drew attention to the truly mignificent microscopic slides shown — tlese could only be obtained through years of patient work.

It was very evident from the loud applause of a crowded room tlat every-one keenly appreciated Mr. Roast's address. The meeting then adourned.

GOOD MEETING

TOA

The recent mild weather has put a very effective stop to hockey. Yesterday afternoon the ice was covered with water and slush. However, after having been scraped off the surface improved slightly. The second and third squad practices were postponed. The first squad turned out in batches of five and six men at a time. "Shag' put these men through a very strenuous workout. He employed his usual "passing" tactics and showed the men several clever tricks, which fooled the defense very effectively. Owing to the soft ice the players were not up to their usual standard as far as speed is concerned, but their stick-handling and condition showed a decided improvement. There were several new men out who showed fair style. There was a slight accident, when the goalkeeper, in trying to stop a fast shot, slipped and fell. It was found that he had strained his leg which was still weak from being hurt previously.

To-day's squads will turn out as fol-

PANDA A STRANGE BEAST.

George N. Pindar, chairman of the Public Information Committee of the American Museum of Natural History, announced that among the museum's latest acquisitions is what is said to be the only specimen of the glant panda ever brought to the United States. The animal, which has been mounted by Frederick Binschke, and is now on exhibition, resembles a bear and is believed to be a distant relative of the raccoon.

"One of the rarest of animals, the giant panda was discovered in 1860 in the mountains of Moupin, Eastern Tibet, bpthe French missionary and explorer, Armand Davis, but is better known as Pere David," Mr. Pindar ex-"The animal is sometimes called the bear-raccoon. The Dirge of the First Year Exams.

(With apologies to Tennyson.)
The author of these lines was stricken with brain fever on reading the following words in the calender: "First Year Intermediate examinations in Arts will commence on Saturday, January 17th, 1920," During his delerium he wrote these lines on the wall-paper beside his bed, appending the last three lines during a slow and painful convalescence.

I REMEMBER.

(By Junie Orr.) I remember, I remember The room in Molson Hall. An air of misery and gloom Hung o'er it like a pal; Thrice fifty wretched studies sat there

And it seemed torture then But now I often wish that I Were seated there again,

I remember, I remember The vigilators fierce; I used to think their eagle eyes Would to my marrow pierce; It was a childish ignorance, For now I know, you see, That tho' they have that funny look They're human, just like me.

I remember, I remember The clock that hung on high, I used to cast a frantic glance To see the moments fly. It never went quite slow enough, Nor dallied on the way-Oh how I often wished that it Would stop for half a day.

remember, I remember The bell they'd loudly ring, The empty, sad sensation As sixty marks went bing. Five minutes more." "Stop writingnow."

"Hand in your books," they'd yell, and still I often dream about The clanging of that bell.

remember, I remember The desk of varnished wood; t had ten ball and socket joints Upon two legs it stood; The other two it waved around And caused the ink to fly; and yet they never broke it up, I've often wondered why.

remember, I remember The books of varied hue; The red and pink and white and green,

The yellow and the blue. t seemed a time of pain and stress. But now it's not much fun, When I'm a junior, to feel My happy days are done.

The McGilli University, Jan. 12th, 1920.

Dear Pa,-Well Pa, here I am back at the old knowledge factory and it certainly warmed up the cockles of my artery feeder to see how my fellow comrades over to the Faculty of Laws give me a welcome. I got so dum mixed up being wished a Merry New Year and a Happy Easter and the like, that final, I took down the names of each mam so's I could wish him the hame as he wished me. For an instance, spose Hilarious Robertson wished me a Merry New Year, I'd have to reply back-"Same to you, Hilarhous," but on the other hands, say this there Seelence Phillimore comes up and hollers, "Complaints of the season, Si," I should answer back-"And I wish you many of them, too, Seelence, old pie-face." In course, I really don't know him wellsee what I mean, Pa?

I don't want that I should talk too much about my own faculty, but still and all, I forgot to mention when I was up to home that the 2nd, and 3rd, year Inside the doors Baseball team won the championship of the hull college, recent. I seen every game, and even if I do say it myself, what shouldn't, I never seen a faster team than this here 2nd and 3rd year Laws outfit. It strikes me that instead of picking an All Star team from the various faculties, to represent the college in the City League, the Laws team in toto (this is Latin like they learn over to the Faculty of Art) would bring home the bacon every time. In course, I realize that I oughta be stilcking up for the Freshmen team, but draft it all, they never asked me to play with them, and the Upper Classmen made me waterboy and mascot. Even at that, after the January Exams, I expect to be moved into '21 Laws, so what's the words, you appear to have your finger on the pulse of the University."

He must think the McGill has Hayfever or the Mumps, eh Pa.

Anyways, I just says: "Well, I may not know it all, but little Si ain't no slouch, I'll announce it to the waiting populace."

"Rather a unique way of phrasing it," says he, "but really my deah fellow, I'd be deucedly bucked if you'd trickle over to my headquarters some sunny day — are you on?"

"Wher do you hang out," I asked, "on the oul clothes line?"

"Oh, I say, that's an awfully devah one, I must jot it down," he hollers.

"Don't bother," I tells him, "Fill loan you the book I seen it in."

"Rippin' — decidedly so," he says—
"I'm located at the Ritz-Carleton just at present, but I am making a vigorous effort to obtain lodgings at the Strathcona Lounge."

"Well," I says, "I'll go over sometime, but I'm pretty dumbusy now, so long."

I met this Fyfe-Smith later at the Union and we had a gab fest. He's a dook or a' Lordship or something and so dum rich that he's got this here Baron Rothchild looking like the President of the Hoboes Union. Anyways, theys a guy answering to the name of Genest over to the Faculty of Laws that wrote out an interview with this here Fyfe-Smith, and some girl from the Royal Victorian College went and got her

INAUGURAL GATHERING OF THE MOCK PARLIAMENT WAS HELD AMID SCENES OF GREAT ENTHUSIASM LAST EVENING

Great Pomp and Display Attend First Meeting - Many Supporters For Both Parties Engage In Heated Discussion - French and English Speeches - Progressives Remain In Power.

Last evening, with all due ceremony soon, thus giving employment to a | I am glad to think that in this session and ritual, the Mock Parliament was inaugurated. For an hour presiding this epoch-making event, the Inion was the scene of much activity: Constitutionalists endeavoring to convince Progressives of their blunders; Ministers and Senators running about distraught in their search for others of their party; and, lastly, to adl to this general confusion, the contingent arrived from the Royal Victoria College, and soon political arguments were interspersed with feminine conversation from the northern end of the hall.

However, both sides of the House soon became filled with supporters, and the meeting gradually took on a temblance of that which it represented-a The leaders of both parties were arraigned opposite one another, each group at the head of its When the Speaker, Mr. Hackett, had been chosen, all was ready for the entry of His Excellency The Governo"-General, in the person of Dean Moyse.

On the entrance of His Excellenck, the assemblage rose to their feet, and remained standing until he had proceeded to the chair. The speech from the throne was now read, the cortent of which is as follows:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senats: Gentlemen of the House of Commons: Once more I welcome you to yourimportant duties in this another session of my Parliament

Canada is passing through this new eriod of world history with marvelous ability and gratifying success. It is evitable that depression and unrest ould be prevalent following the wake the recent great world war and curg the period of reconstruction folwing.

My Advisers, therefore, are impressed with the necessity for a strong and progressive policy that equal justice may be done. Much needed and long delayed legislation will be Members of the House of Commons. I laid before you in order that my people may receive such social and material blessings as will make them happy and prosperous people, and the nation of Canada within our British Commonwealth a land reputed for its justice and prosperity.

Representation.

That the voice of my people may be heard in our Legislative Councils, and that they may be fully able to express their opinion on all matters of national importance, a Bill for Proportional Representation will be laid before you for your ratification.

Measures are to be taken for a complete revision of the present scale of pensions for War Widows and Disabled Soldiers in order to place these pensions on a more suitable basis. rate of pensions will be increased and equalization as between ranks is contemplated.

Taxation.

My government will submit the following measures for taxation, the importance of which I need not point out. Canada's war debt; gratuities and pensions; and the providing for unemployment and reconstruction must be met speediny. In view of the enormous war debt, and that my people may have a chance to pay for the west as my soldiers fought to win it, a Bill will be brought in providing for a Levy

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate. cannot contemplate without concern the continued high cost of living, with all its evil consequences and the distress it is causing throughout the country. The problem of reducing it has received your constant attention and consideration.

In this connection Bills will be introduced to reconsider the prices charged to students for football. Proper and commodious residences to crown the campus with glory, and material assistance to be given to soldier students, including free tuition. Government cows are to be put in charge of McGill to provide cheap milk for Freshmen.

Public Health.

I draw the attention of the Minister of Public Health to the unsanitary and inconvenient arrangement on the drinking fountain in the Arts Building. I view with appreciation the coming legislation on public health relating itself so closely in the efficiency, happiness and contentment of my subjects.

Members of the House of Commons:

The accounts of the last and the estimates for the next fiscal year will be laid before you without delay. Gentlemen of the Senate:

R.V.C.-QUEENS

QUEENS ARRIVE AMID CHEERS.

BASKETBALL BANQUET IN THEIR HONOR.

Queens have arrived. Never before was the tension so great, the excitement more in evidence, or patience better repaid than when they arrived. For hours it seemed everyone was waiting, wondering, and wishing. Two or three times the R.V.C. rooters could be heard in the Hall cheering. Had the team arrived? No. the rooters were merely practising. Thus at the fourth practice of the Queens yell, we realized they had arrived. They had been delayed an hour, but were none the less wearied. After they had recovered their equilibrium due to the effects of the journey, the hostesses escorted their guests to the dining room. Here the sight was dazzling, the tables arranged in a T shape, with the floral decorations representing the colors of the visiting team blue bowls, red tulips, and yellow daffodils. For the central decoration, uplifted to meet the gaze of all, the R. V. C. basketball reposed serenely, decorated with Queens colors.

At the head of the table sat Miss Hurlbatt, Miss Clark, the Queens head of the Physical Education Department, Miss Hackett from Macdonald, Miss Brown, Miss Campbell, the Queens captain, Miss Queenie Sayage, Athletic President, and Miss Grace Moody captain of the R. V. C. team. Down the sides of the table were seated alternately a Queens girl and an R. V. C. girl.

It was rather unfortunate that a game had to be played in the evening, as the teams were in training, and felt they must refuse several courses. This feeling was soon lost as the dainties were too tempting. The King himself could not have partaken of a more royal banquet, nor have done it more justice than did the teams. After the last course had disappeared there was a short silence. Whereupon Miss Savage proposed the toast to the King. After the drink-

R V.C. GIRLS WON BASKETBALL MATCH

Excelled Queens In Team-Work and Combination.

SCORE: 21-16.

The R.V.C. basketball team defeated Queen's last night in a fast and exciting game. Both teams played good basketball, and the girls of the R.V.C. deserve great credit for their victory.

The R.V.C. team played much better combination and worked together more smoothly than did the Queen's players. The McGill guards often got the ball, then by a series of net passes it was shot to the other end of the floor, and converted into a goal.

The Queen's found it difficult to get going on the strange floor at first, but in the second half they tried hard to even up the score. Play was fast and exciting from the start to finish, and the R.V.C. athlets clearly showed their superiority over Queen's. The R.V.C. rooters gave hearty support to their team, and rendered both the Mc-Gill and Queen's yells with great enthusiasm.

Marjorie Legati played a brilliant game for R.V.C. and was the most consistant goal getter. Aprila Slack played a strong game and shot some neat baskets. Queenie Savage and Ella Shlackman played a good game on defence and foiled many of Queens' attempts for baskets.

Elieen Campbell, of Queen's broke away in the first period and found the basket unerringly. Gladys Monroe played a strong game for Queen's in the last period and scored most of the goals for her side during the first half. First Period.

In the first few minutes of play Marjorie Legatt received the ball from a pretty piece of combination and scored. Shortly afterward she again netted the ball with a close shot, then scored again on a penalty. Queen's attacked R.V.C. goal, but were unable to score. Zuade Slack made a nice shot and scored for McGill. R.V.C. gave a pretty display of combination, but could not find the basket. Eileen Cameron received a long pass and dropped the ball through the basket for Queen's forst count. Marjorie Legatt retaliated and netted the ball again. Queen's fouled and Zuada Slack scored on the penalty shot.

Play became exciting. Zuada Slack caught the ball under the basket and shot it actually through the nets for a tally. Queen's played harder than ever, and Eileen Cameron, in spite of the fact that she was closely guarded. Shortly after shot a brilliant goal. play was resumed she scored again. Her fine shooting was a feature of this stage of the game. Play became past around the R.V.C. goal with the Queen's forwards trying hard to score. Finally Gladys Monroe fooled the guards and shot a neat basket. The Queen's girls had become more accustomed to the floor by this time and checked strenuously. Gladys Monroe tried a shot for the basket and dropped the ball deftly through. R.V.C. came back strong and in the closing minutes Zuada Slace shot the last goal of the first period. Second Period.

The Queen's team came on the floor in this period detarmined to win. They checked much harder and their combination was better, but as they improved in their playing, the R.V.C. girls also showed a better brand of basketball and held their opponents well. Eileen Campbell opened the scoring for Queen's in the first minute of play. R.V.C. came back with a burst of speed and tricky combination and Marjorie Legatt eluded the guards and scored. Zuada Slack followed her good example and netted the second basket of the period for her team. Marjerie Legatt tallied once more. R.V.C. fouled and Gladys Monroe netted a penalty for Queens. Both R.V.C. and Queen's played fast basketball now and play

MR. SKYWOOZLE VISITS McGILL

(On the night of Feb. 6th, the McGill Daily Wireless Operator rushed into the office, wild with excitement and announced that he was positive that Mars was signalling the "Daily," was received with instatement credulous laughter. The following night, the "Daily" operator summoned the editorial staff to the wireless sta tion on the roof of the Union and demonstrated conclusively that he was receiving messages, which, although as vet unintelligible, gave every evidence of emanating from a planat other than our own. Judge of our excitement when, the next night, our radio expert handed in the message published below exactly as received. It is possible that the "McGill Daily" has been selected as the best medium for giving to the world reports from Mars, an honor which is being sought by the foremost scientists of the day. At first sight this seems incredible, but stranger things have happened, especially in the realms of scientific achievement Modest as we are, we cannot refrain from thinking that Mr. Skywoozle, or 11224-B, as he is doubtless known on Mars, has exhibited sound judgment in selecting the "Daily" as the mouthpiece for his messages. Let us hope that this communication from the Martians will not be the last.)

Landed in Gyrator on McGill Campus at 4/10 Centrifugal Yuga approximately. Experienced great difficulty in obtaining sufficient room to land, owing to vast number of nurse maids and infants about. Must be a large Kindergarten Faculty at McGill-Extraordinary.

Parked Gyrator in basement of large building which I subsequently learned was the Union, the central meeting place of the students. Collapsible nature of the machine enabled me to Union to Law Faculty. Entered building and conversed with numerous Law students. Found them to possess a very high degree of intelligence and general knowledge that compares favorably with the savants and intellectual leaders on Mars. In this respect, would like to say, at the risk of being accused of prejudice, that the Law Students at McGill appear to be superior to those of other faculties in every particular. Very much disappointed in Law Building itself-stuffy rooms - inefficient space - students crammed together like sardines in a can - more like a night school than anything else - depressing - very. Students inform me that they hope for better things next session.

The Whiffletree than stated that he had an unusual treat in store for me. Would not divulge particulars as to its nature. Very mysterious, withal intriguing. Wended our way across campus, meeting enroute a bevy of young females coming out of the Arts Building. My companion insisted on stopping to chat with them. All were attractive to the eye and second to the Jurists in intelligence. I was informed that these females belonged to the 1st year B.Sc. course.

Next proceed to the edifice of the Faculty of Embroidery. Descended to the lower regions of the building, the Whiffletree motioning me to silence. I obeyed him implicitly. Stopped half way down the stairs, whereupon my guide whispered: "Take a look at him. He's the Editor of the Broadside." My eyes, now accustomed to the gloom, observed earthly being in the act of conveying black pieces of mineral substance into the door of a large metallic machine by means of a scoop-like pole. Heat was apparently being generated within the machine, for I observed a pronounced glow emanating from the open door - Very curious. Whiffletree now exclaimed with a triumphant inflection in his voice: "He's a Cambridge graduate disguised as a Janitor, and I'm the only bird at McGill what knows he wrote it-Can't

TO A BONFIRE

The following poem received first prize this year in the Royal Victoria College Delta Sigma Society contest:—

TO A BONFIRE

Herald of Springtime, by whose light We learn that Winter is in flight, Thy purigent smoke and crackling flame

Show that, though called by other name,

The heart of every husbandman Is loyal still to ancient Pan.

For thou his rites are used no more,
'Tis proof that men still love his lore.

When, on the altar of the sod, They offer thee to Nature's god.

Thou are the incense which they send,
Praying that Cores aid will lend
And bless the peasant's planted field
That fruitful harvest it may yield.

Thou, who through every age hast shone

To tell when Winter's Frosts have gone,

Soon as the earliest robins sing.

Return, thou herald of the Spring,
And to the farmer bring each year

Thy messages of hope and cheer.

And the general battles that ensued over the rebellious ones! Will we ever forget clamoring the cause of Esther Lewis after her famous flaunting of Sophomorial authority and here definition of a Soph! We were truly a frisky crowd of Freshettes and full of "ideas," which obsession, came out in originality of basket ball colors which we chose, blue and yellow instead of traditional green, and appeared on the field with one blue stocking and one yellow; with our hair in a braid and blue and yellow ribbons! Also the parties of the House members were examples of the same disease. Who does not remember the famous wedding we staged, and the subsequent wealth of authority resulting in the chief conspirators limping about with stiff knees for days as a result of keenly sweeping up confetti fro mthe hall carpet till well on in the early hours? As Freshies we were thoroughly and systematically "squashed" by those above us but it took a good deal to dampen our versatile spirits, and the discipline only resulted in inculcating in R. U. C., R. O. C. proper regard for superiority and a very humble idea of their own individual importance. As a class we ardently went in for everything but won no actual glory except in tennis when Eva Ross won the individual championship, an unprecedented achievement for a Freshie.

In our Sophomore year, 1920 made a name for itself in all fields of activity. We won the shield for highest aggregate in sports Day and Queenie Savage carried off the individual championship cup by a large total of points. Later on in September the debating shield fell to '20; Dorothy Mawdsley captured second prize in the impromptu speaking contest; and as a climax we won the Banner at the end of the year.

We began our Junior year, a very small class-twenty-seven in all. Many had left us for other classes and colleges and these friends we greatly missed; 1920 suffered a great loss in October at the death of Alice Safford one of the most capable and beloved girls of the class and whose want we keenly felt during our two remaining years.

In spite of the fact that we lost more than a month of the term during the "Flu" epidemic we managed to cram a good deal into the rest of the term. That "Flu" interval, I can't seem to remember very clearly. As then, except that it was ver, duil. Rub-a-dub-dub! Rub-a-dub-dub!

Shall we ever be done with the everlasting cleaning? Not this side of Jordon, I very much fear, so we may as well learn how it ought to be done, and then it is not such drudgery, and besides we are not so likely to ruin some of our dearest possessions. Soap and water are good for nearly every cleaning task, but some there are where expert knowledge is really required if we are not to injure the thing we would improve.

To clean leather bindings, for instance, put a little castor oil into a jar and shred into it half its weight of paraffin wax. Warm it and work a little of the mixture into a piece of flannel. Rub the leather with this and finish with a soft clean cloth. This must be used very sparingly.

To clean nickle, mix very fine emery powder with linseed oil, and polish vigorously with it; then rub the nickle dry, and shine with a flannel cloth.

Another method is to rub the nickle

Another method is to rub the nickle well with oil or vaseline, and leave it on for some time. Then rub it dry and bright. If the nickle is rusted, it may be oiled, then dusted with unslacked lime, and polished. If the nickle is both rusty and greasy, a mixture of emery powder and soft soap can be used to clean and polish it.

Nature intends that we should breathe through the nose and has arranged matters so that the air is strained, warmed and moistened as it passes through the nostrils. Unfortunately, about 10 per cent of all children have Adenoids which interfere with free breathing through the nose. So many serious results follow this condition that parents should learn something about Adenoids and their treatment.

One of the first results of the growth of Adenoids is the familiar type of "mouth-breathing." When this condition develops, the air persulted in reaches the throat and lungs in an unpurified state, without of control of the growth of the gr

LAVAL PAID McGILL VISIT THIS MORNING

French Students Received Enthusiastic Welcome.

SPEECHES MADE.

Expressions Of Good-Feeling
Between Local Universities.

A most unexpected, but none the less welcome visit was paid by the students of the University of Montreal to the students of McGill this morning.

Some three hundred Laval boys, wearing the black velvet student-cap, with red ribbon, and canes, and led by M. Louis H. Gariepy, president of the Medical Undergraduate Society, paraded in good order to the tune of the old-time college songs, through the college grounds.

Their songs, cheers and general noise brought out several hundred students from the surrounding buildings, and by the time a halt was called by the paraders, in front of the Arts Building—the main entrance to that historic abode—the immediate neighborhood was thronged with the intermingled students.

Arts signalized their welcome by the McGill yell, which was followed with short speeches by the Lavai leaders. Replying on behalf of the McGill students, Mr. H. Robertson expressed the hope and desire of a furtherance of the amicable spirit which has marked the past relationship of the two universities.

Mr Gariepy then extended to the McGill student body a hearty invitation to join them that afternoon in a river excursion to St. Helen's Island.

The combined singing of "God Save the King" and 'O Canada" brought things to a close. The Laval students then left in the highest spirits, but with a discipline which was indeed commendable.

R. V. C. STAGED ANNUAL EVENT

Sophs Treated Verdant Freshies To Big Time.

The Solemn Rite of Initiation was performed on Friday morning at R.V.C., when the lordly Sophs, clad in deepest black, administered justice to the Freshettes of '24.

The Freshies were somewhat tardy in arriving, perhaps due to the fact that they had not allowed time enough for the braiding of their hair in ten or more tight braids, each terminating in a green bow. Besides this, they were required to wear short gingham dresses and socks, symbolizing their youth and ignorance.

After the roll call, the Freshies filed through the lower door, and pitiful shrieks for mercy echoed through the stately halls, as each victim was blindfolded and hand-cuffed.

Then they were required to do

Is there a Freshie who has not stood up when the lordly Soph approached?

Is there a Freshie who has not removed plates for these mighty ones?

Is there a Freshie who has failed to open the door for the passage of their betters?

Beware! for your names are written in the Book of the Condemned. Beware, wretched ones! The hour of your doom approaches!

YOU

of the verdant hue,

YOU

your misdeeds will rue.

IF

you do not your duty do,

O BEWARE!!

FRESHIES!!
Freshies, you've been very rude,

And you're wisdom's very crude; Sophs you duly will instruct How to better your conduct,

When you're up you're up, When you're down you're down,

When you're up against the Red and White You're up side down.

Campbell and Miss Olding the fourth. Of these matches, only one, namely, that between the Senior and Junior teams, has been played off. It is hoped that, if the weather is fine, the match between the Sophomores and Freshmen will be played on Monday morning at 10 o'clock, and the finals at two-thirty in the afternoon.

While the court was heavy, owing to the rain of Thursday, the style of the playing in Friday's tournament was such as to encourage the fond hope of Ladies' Intercollegiate Tennis by remarkable contortions, frequently gets over a brilliant serve, and Miss L. Aylen, who seldom misses a ball, proved a formidable combination and, throughout, hotly contested the superiority of their opponents. While there were a few love games in the Miss D. Campbell Wins the beginning of the match, the resolution of each team grew keener in the playing, and, towards the end, the losers never scored less than thirty, and "deuce" games became frequent and prolonged. This was, undoubtedly, one of the most interesting matches witnessed in the tournament, and, for once, the players received the enthusiastic applause of a fairly large number of students.

> . The semi-final match in the singles between Miss C. Robertson and Miss E. Camptell proved to be a very even one, each of the players invariably winning her own serve. It was not till the end that Miss E. Campbell showed her power in volleying, and, by some rapid returns, took the match from Miss Robertson at a score of 9-7. Miss Robertson, however, can serve a very swift ball, and, while she is not so strong on the return as Miss Campbell, her college career is just beginning, and her chances of some day appearing in the finals are bright.

It was unfortunate that, owing to the number of matches played during the morning, neither of the competitors for the individual championship finals were fresh for their great attempt. This is especially true of Miss E. Campbell, who had just finished two vigorous matches in the singles. That she was tired and discouraged was clear in the first three games, during which she hardly scored at all, but her fighting spirit revived, and in the fourth game she began to pick up. During the next few games both players were at their best. The serving was uniformly good, the placing of the balls skillful, and the volleying excellent. The ball flashed across the court from one racquet to the other with lightning rapidity. Miss E. Campbell rapidly gained on her opponent until the score stood at 5-4, in favor of Miss D. Campbell, and the excitement was indemi - Private

I .- THE LIBRARY.

A Tragedy in One Act.

Time-Any Afternoon.

Before the curtain rises a continu. ous subdued sound is heard gradually increasing in intensity until the scene opens. The reading-room of a certain well-known university library is disclosed to view. A few misguided persons scattered here and there about the scene are to be seen endeavoring to assimilate the contents of certain large tomes resting on the tables in front of them. The vast bulk of the performers, however, are lolling about the hall in various attitudes of conversational ease, talking to one another in loud hoarse whispers. The conversation appears to be of a humorous nature, as from time to time peals of more or less suppressed laughter float across the room. The miserable minority engaged ostensibly in reading make heroic attempts to control their feelings of annoyance. The mirth of the conversationalists increases at this, and some of them endowed with a stronger sense of humor than their fellows roguishly pull a few dictionaries from the shelves, letting them drop on the floor with a resounding crash.

Apparently unable to endure the atmosphere of unrest, one of the readers rises and places his book disconsolately on the shelf. His action is greeted with shouts of delight by most of the Dramatis Personae. Forming up on the left side of the hall, they hurdle across all intervening obstacles to the other side. The winner is presented with the book just replaced, and is accorded an ovation by the "also-rans." The groups reform and conversation is resumed.

A number of the fair sex are to be observed on the right-hand side of the stage, artistically draped over the furniture. They appear to be engaged in a heated political discussion. Although fewer in number than the male actors, their high-pitched soprano voices are clearly audible above the tumult.

THE PAPER-WOMAN.

Outside the "Ritz" a paper-woman stands

And peddles the Gazette. And every

I drop three coppers in her ice-cold hands

And take my papers as I go inside.

And when it's down to zero, she will say.

"It's pretty cold to-day, sir," and each time

I say, "You bet!" And as the door swings wide

I often think she ought to charge a dime.

Perhaps St. Peter at the Pearly Gates, Taking the tickets, feels a trifle cold At times. He must be getting pretty old.

For hm, no doubt, some brighter future waits.

His deeds are known, but no one's sung before

Of the old woman at the hash-house door. G. G.

THE NEW ORDER.

A song I sing of old traditions busted, Of institutions going to the dogs,

Of women jumping like a plague of frogs
Into our labs. I sing as one disgusted.

Once, o'er the ancient "Chemistry and Mining"

There brooded peace and quiet, sweet repose.

Alas! they've come to an untimely close,—

The good old days for which I'm now repining.

The swish of skirts, the bursts of high-pitched laughter,

Tell us of sudden female inundations.

How can a fellow carry out titrations

With all those Janes requiring "looking after"?

We have come back from walloping the Boche,

To find that woman is our equal.

Gosh! G. G.

MOUNTAINS AND MOLEHILLS.

Long, long ago, I can remember still,
Some men impinged upon my youthful sight

Whose hat-bands bore a slip of redand-white,

And mother said, "They're students at McGill."

So in those paragons I thought I saw A race of demi-gods, of super-sages, The heirs of all the learning of the ages,

And, being young, I gazed on them in awe.

But now, when I behold a jaunty child

Whose proud Fedora, slant-wise on his head,

Flies like a man-o'-war the whiteand-red,

I think, "Another freshie. Ain't he wild!"

Like beauty, size is in the beholder's

The cockroach looks enormous to the fly. G. G.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily." Dear Sir,—

May I suggest that a breeches buoy, ferryboat, or some other line of communication be immediately established between the Wetpath Library and the rest of the College grounds after every rain.

For days it has been cut off by roaring torrents which flood the road and cascade gracefully over on to the campus.

Of course there is the amusement, after crossing the Niagara, of watching the students of both sexes contorting themselves in an endeavor to prevent their boots from "squelching" too loudly as they walk in those halls of awful silence, but it is only a sorry consolation, for the muse goes out of the amusement when your feet are cold and your ankles wet.

Levity aside, however, Mr. Editor, I should like to propose to the Head of the Marine and Fisheries department of McGill that immediate steps be taken to remedy this longstanding grievance of Library-goers.

Yours truly, "NON-SWIMMER."

RED AND WHITE ASSUME LEAD IN RACE FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE CHAMPIONSHIP DEFEATING 'VARSITY IN CLOSE MATCH

McGill Seniors Down Toronto By Score Of 7-3 - Varsity Will Probably Create Tie In Their Queens Fixture Next Saturday - No Touches Made In Game Which Consisted Mostly In Kicking-Both Lines Held Tight Throughout Game-Record Crowd Of Spectators Saw Classic Struggle - Rooters Added Much Enjoyment To Afternoon, Especially Those From R.V.C.-Anderson, Little and Baillie Starred For McGill.

McGill, 7; 'Varsity, 8.

They did it!

Playing with that old spirit which has long been the characteristic of McGill Rugby squads when engaged in bitter struggles, the Red White team defeated Laddie Cassell's 'Varsity players at the Stadium on Saturday afternoon, and thus earned the right to play off with Toronto for the Intercollegiate Football Championship for the 1920 season. dom in the history of the Intercollegiate have these two old rivals put up such a hard-fought game as that played on Saturday, and from the start of the match until the referee's final whistle, both squads showed that utter willingness to give the final measure of physical sacrifice that victory might be gained.

As a result of Saturday's win, the Red and White squad will most likely play off with 'Varsity for Toronto has yet to play Queen's in the final scheduled league game of the series, but it is not considered that the Tri-color will have much of a chance against the husky Blue and White squad, and that Toronto will carry the game, thus creatng a tie in the race. An informal eeting regarding the play-off, if should be necessary, was held much heavier and with a fast back line that proved a veritable power in attack. "Red" MacKenzie, Captain Joe Breen and Taylor time and again saved the 'Varsity team from dangerous situations by their stellar handling of the long punts, their speedy runs around the end, and through broken fields, and their occasional bucks into the line. Taylor was not so fortunate in getting his kicks off as he was in the game at Toronto, two weeks ago, and found that the McGill line-men were often getting through and blocking them. wards the end of the game he resorted to short onside kicks, but in almost every instance these gained little ground for 'Varsity, due to the snappy work of "Boo" Anderson, who generally managed to get in under the pigskin and gather it unto him-On occasion, the untiring half went by the air route and took an onside kick away from three Blue and White players who were waiting nearer the ground for the leather.

On the line the work was of a sen-The lighter McGill sational order. line-men more than held their own against the husky 'Varsity plungers, and it was seldom that the Blue and White made gains. The McGill secondary defence, with Don Baillie, getting in under the plays, proved one of the features of the struggle.

'Varsity gained the first point of long boot out. Just before quarter time, Taylor added a point, when he kicked to Flanagan, who was forced to rouge. McGill, 3; 'Varsity, 2.

The teams settled down to dogged Rugby in the second period, and only one point was scored, McGill gaining this when Flanagan kicked to Mac-Kenzie behind the line, just at the end of the half, Little and Wallace nailing "Red" before he could barge his way out to safety. It was in this quarter that the teams more or less solved one another's plays. found the opening to block Taylor's kicks, while 'Varsity learned that it could not make yards itself, but also that it could tighten up on the Red and White bucks.

In the second half the play waxed furious, several of the players taking the count on both sides. With all its excitement and closeness, the game was kept remarkably clean, Snyder, of Toronto, being the only player to visit the penalty bench. kicks by Taylor featured the opening of the last half, but when 'Varsity lost on off-side, McGill started a rush for the Blue and White line, Flanagan and Notman making substantial bucks, and finally "Flin" booted to Breen in front of the posts. Little nailing the speedy back and dragging him across the line for a safety touch. A series of kicking bouts between Flanagan and Taylor occupied the rest of the third quarter and the whistle blew with the pigskin at centrefield. McGill, 6; 'Varsity, 2.

The last period was fraught with great possibilities. 'Varsity started out with an onside kick by Taylor. which brought the McGAl line into and after a short tussle Flanagan was forced to rouge on a kick from the 'Varsity centre half. Enthusiasm reached a high pitch with the spectators urging on their

COMMUNITY PLAYERS OF MONTREAL

SEASON 1920-21

The Community Players of Montreal have arranged a series of five dramatic productions, to be given during the season of 1920-21, at the New Empire Theatre, each production being given for three consecutive evenings on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The first of these is now being presented. Particulars of the second will be found elsewhere in this programme.

The remaining three productions will take place on January 27, 28 and 29; March 3, 4 and 5, and April 7, 8 and 9 respectively. The programme for these productions will be announced later. The Committee hope to be able to include a number of plays by Canadian authors.

For the initial season it has been decided that the organization shall be entirely amateur in character. The only artistic services for which payment may be deemed necessary by the Committee are those of the technical producer in charge of each production. It is of course understood that the services of the Committee are entirely gratuitous.

The financial risks of the initial season have been generously assumed to the extent of $2,500, by twenty-five citizens of Montreal—to whom the Committee hereby acknowledges its indebtedness. An auditor's report will be published at the close of the season.

A Play of Russia in One Act, by George Calderon

The late Mr. George Calderon was the first to introduce to English readers the plays of the famous Russian dramatist Anton Tchekhof. A volume published in 1912 contains admirable translations by him of "The Seagull" and "The Cherry Orchard." Of Mr. Calderon's own works the best known are "The

Of Mr. Calderon's own works the best known are "The Fountain," a comedy in three acts, which was first produced by the Glasgow Repertory Theatre in 1909, and "The Little Stone House," for long in the regular repertory of Miss Horniman's Manchester Company. The fine construction and tense dramatic qualities of this latter piece have ensured for it a permanent place in repertory theatre literature.

"SQUIRRELS"
A Comedy of Montreal in One Act, by J. E. Hoare

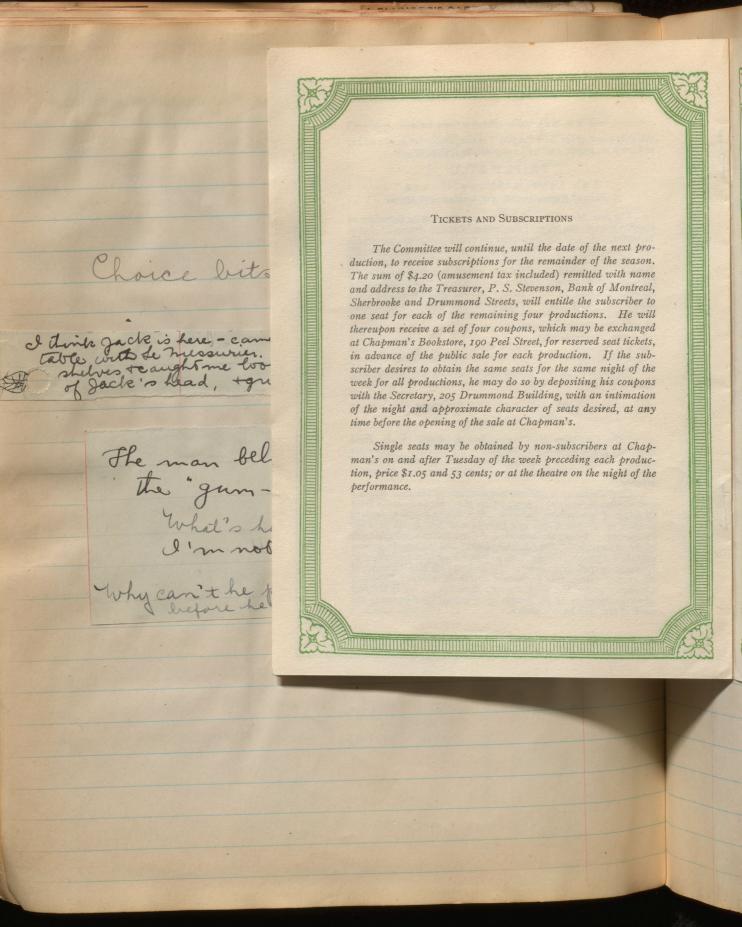

This will be the first production on any stage of this comedy, written, produced and performed by Montreal men and women.

"THE GLITTERING GATE"

by Lord Dunsany

"The Glittering Gate" was first produced by the Irish National Theatre Society on the 29th of April, 1909. There are only two persons in this play, both of them ex-burglars, both of them dead. The scene is laid in a lonely place outside the gate of Heaven.

Lord Dunsany is without question one of the most original contributors to the Irish School, yet his plays are in no sense Irish in locale or atmosphere, but deal rather with a world of fantasy peopled by strange Kings and Queens and gods of his peculiar imagining. Among the later plays the best known are "The Gods of the Mountain," "The Glittering Gate," and "King Argimenes and the Unknown Warrior," all of which have been performed in England on various occasions. "The Lost Silk Hat," another of the shorter pieces, was performed by the Manchester Repertory Company under Mr. Iden Payne's direction. This is the first opportunity given to the people of Montreal of witnessing the work of this well-known author.

TORONTO PAPER BOOSTS McGILL

Says Saturday's Game Demonstrated McGill's Gameness.

The defeat is not discreditable to McGill, writes G. H. Lash in the "Mail and Empire." In fact, in defeat McGill rose to heights which it could never have reached in victory. There was something which varged on the heroic in their magnificent struggle against overwhelming odds No touchdown, no victory, ever stirred the hearts of so many so deeply, as the spectacle of a halfback - Flanagan - holding grimly to his position, giving his all, until finally exhausted he dropped to the ground and was carried off the field. There was something truly splendid in the spectacle of Dudley Ross, captain of the McGill team, so hurt and bruised that he could hardly stand, refusing, almost angrily, to leave his team, and going down to defeat with them right on the field to the last half second. There was something pathetically wonderful in the valiant but vain effort of the McGill line to do all the work itself when the painful realization came to it that it no longer had a dependable back line for support, and when, at last it earned its touchdown many 'Varsity voices mingled in the cheers.

Co-eds Showed Splendid Spirit Saturday.

KINDLY TREATMENT.

Both Railway Officials and McGill Men Made Trip Pleasant.

A bevy of Red Tams cheered the R.V.C. contingent as the Kingston train pulled out from Bonaventure Station Saturday morning. Every kindness and courtesy was shown us by the railroad officials during our trip. From the moment our team first appeared on the field we all thrilled with pride, and during the whole game this feeling never left us.

After the game we paid a visit to Queen's, once again meeting some of the girls who were here last year for the Basketball game between Queen's and R.V.C. Here we were given tea, which was greatly appreciated by all.

The journey home, although long, was pleasant. The consideration shown us by the McGill men, both on the train and at the game, helped to make the day one which we will never forget.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily." Dear Sir,-

I think it is only just to give credit where credit is due, and it certainly is coming to the R.V.C. for their splendid showing on Saturday. They sent a very fair deputation up to the game, who bore with much patience all the inconveniences of the journey. And, moreover, they were on hand to welcome the team back. Much has been written against the co-eds this season, but I earnestly believe that it is time we began to realize that they are laboring under severe difficulties, and are doing wonderfully despite circumstances adverse to their carrying on.

Yours etc.,

FAIRNESS.

THE Castle Blend Catering Service handles each entertainment in a distinctly different fashion.

For instance, the formal House Dinner Party is lent necessary dignity by the Castle Blend Catered masterly arrangements, decorations service and irreproachable menu; and the smaller, friendly little Dinner Party is made the gayer and brighter by the nature of the Castle Blend Catering.

Receptions and Teas catered by the Castle Blend are treated with a delightful delicacy quite out of the ordinary and in perfect harmony with their "lighter"

WEDDINGS

THE Castle Blend Catering Service has made a separate study of Wedding Catering, and is learning more every day from the princely wedding arrangements handled by famous caterers of London, New York and Paris.

If it is to be a buffet Luncheon, your guests will be charmed by the deftness and silence of the servitors, by the dainty deliciousness and variety of the dishes, and by the masterly fashion in which the arrangements are carried out.

If the Luncheon or Breakfast is to be a "sit-down" affair, we commence with the place cards and favors to be "different," and carry this difference through to the finger bowls.

It is well worth the trifling extra cost to have your wedding breakfast unordinary and exclusive—let us tell you more of our methods!

O EBENEEZER!

(Special from the R.V.C.)

Theophalis the Goalpost unto Ebeneezer his fellow martyr, Greetings! A former treatise have I made unio thee O Ebeneezer concerning that which I am condemned daily to see and yet once more shall I tell thee al strange happenings.

And behold! in the second month of the year and the twenty-third day of the month came certain of the virgins of the R.V.C. unto the Hollow clad in raiment of red and of white and bearing aloft branches of some strange tree, cunningly wrought. Now of two tribes were they: and the maidens of the tribe of the Sophistines arrayed themselves over against the summer house and the maidens of the tribe of the Freshites stood to southward at the end of the rink as thou comest to Sherbrooke Street. Then did the great and wise man Errol, son of Amaron, stand forth

And behold both Robertson the Freshite and Elliot her sister seemed determined to score and great were the rushes made by these two and right well did they handle their sticks. And now were they aided by Hertzberg but she who stood within the goal, even Lorna daughter of Kerr turned aside the shots of the Freshites. Then Slack and Roy of the Sophistines did labour exceedingly hard to cause the puck to enter the borders of the goal of the Fresh-And the Captain ites but in vain. of the Sophistines became exceeding weary and one Wighton did replace her till she had rested. And behold many times did the son of Amaron become entangled in the waving sticks but leapt he lightly, even as a young hind from the midst of the rushing maidens and landed safely several cubits off- Lo, Great was the joy of those that watched to behold the efforts of this young man to escape being trodden underfoot. But soon the trumpet sounded and once more the maidens betook themselves unto the benches.

And behold, as they rested, one of the Subs of the Sophistines went forth upon the ice and thrice did she drive the puck past the stick and past the feet of the son of Amaron who stood within the goal-yea, verily, did she pass even that wise man so well versed in the game, hockey. And exceeding great was the rejoicing of the spectators thereat, and loud their praise of the prowess of their sister. And hearing the tumult, three youths drew nigh and took their stand upon the side of the hill, and two aged damsels watched from afar off, as for the last time the maidens went forth upon the ice.

Then like a whirlwind advanced Elliot the Freshite, driving the puck loud voice, "Woe, woe is me!" and "Score there, you blighters!" and cast ashes upon their heads. Then furious waxed the struggle, and damsel overturned damsel, as from north to south drove they the puck. And many were the cries of "Shoot a goal, '23!"-yet shot they not a goal, neither they not yet their enemies. Yet loud waxed the cheering, and upon the Street Sherbrooke a peculiar engine, called in the tongue of Mc-Gill-ites, the "Lizzie," slowed down, as did yet another chariot, upon whose sides was written "Grant's Grocery," and those that passed by upon the sidewalk halted and gazed with eager eyes upon the scene before them. Nor did they look for excitement in vain, for behold, with a mighty bound leapt Slack into the air and descended upon the ice with great velocity. Howbeit, neither was she nor the ice much injured, and at the call, "One minute to go," sprang to her feet. And now the Freshites strove diligently to make even the score, but the unwelcome blast of the trumpet bade them cease from vain labors and betake themselves unto Mathematics.

And this, O my brother, is a true report of the struggle between the Sophistines and the Freshites; and behold the score at the end thereof was 1-0 for the Sophistines.

Lo, this was the line-up:

PSALM 119 (VERSES I-16)

(To be read responsively by Minister and congregation)

Blessed are those that are undefiled in the way: and walk in the law of the Lord. Blessed are they that keep his testimonies: and seek him with their whole heart. For they who do no wickedness: walk in his ways.

Thou hast charged: that we shall diligently keep the commandments.

O that my ways were made so direct: that I might keep thy statutes!

So shall I not be confounded: while I have respect unto all thy commandments.

I will thank thee with an unfeigned heart: when I shall have learned the judgements of thy righteousness.

I will keep thy ceremonies: O forsake me not utterly.

In quo corriget?

Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way: even by ruling himself after thy word. With my whole heart have I sought thee: O let me not go wrong out of thy commandments.

Commandments:

Thy words have I hid within my heart: that I should not sin against thee.

Blessed art thou, O Lord: O teach me thy statutes.

With my lips have I been telling: of all the judgements of thy mouth.

I have had as great delight in the way of thy testimonies: as in all manner of riches.

I will talk of thy commandments: and have respect unto thy ways.

My delight shall be in thy statutes: and I will not forget thy word.

HYMN 94

As with gladness men of old Did the guiding star behold, As with joy they hailed its light, Leading onward, beaming bright; So, most gracious Lord, may we Evermore be led to Thee.

As with joyful steps they sped, Saviour, to Thy lowly bed, There to bend the knee before Thee Whom heaven and earth adore; So may we with willing feet Ever seek Thy mercy-seat.

As they offered gifts most rare At that cradle rude and bare; So may we with holy joy,

HYMN 662

On which the Prince of glory died,
My richest gain I count but loss,
And pour contempt on all my pride.
Forbid it, Lord, that I should boast,

Pure and free from sin's alloy, All our costliest treasures bring Christ, to Thee our heavenly King.

Holy Jesu, every day Keep us in the narrow way; And, when earthly things are past, Bring our ransomed souls at last Where they need no star to guide, Where no cloud Thy glory hide.

In the heavenly country bright Need they no created light; Thou its Light. its Joy, its Crown, Thou its Sun which goes not down: There for ever may we sing Alleluias to our King. Amen.

THE MOTHER

This moving drama of real life, which will be the principal attraction at the Orpheum Theatre next week, is one of the most interesting and appealing plays on the English-speaking stage to-day. Everybody knows Will Carleton's famous poem upon which its story is based and to the details of which the dramatic version faithfully adheres. It is the story of a mother who deveted her whole life to her children, only to find herself neglected and compelled to take shelter in the poor-house in her old age, until she was rescued from its ignominy and restored to comfort and a happy home through the devetion of one son who never forgot hte debt he owed her.

The incidents are such as everybody recognises,—just pages torn from everyday life. So are the characters. Everything in this play is real. You recognise in the Mother of "Over the Hill to the Poor-house" your own mother and the mother of everybody. The sentiment is strangely moving. Few can see this play without being reduced to tears at its most pathetic moments. It breathes a healthy tone, it teaches a noble lesson, and it is stamped throug hout with the beauty that lies in a mother's unselfish love for her own.

STADIUM FLAGPOLE DEDICATED FRIDAY

Lord Byng and Sir Arthur Currie Officiated

Yesterday afternoon a very impressive ceremony took place when Lord Byng, Sir Arthur Currie unveiled the memorial flagstaff at the Stadium in memory of the men of the 10th McGill Siege Battery who were killed in action.

The ceremony was performed after the hundred yard dash one of the first events on the programme. A short prayer preceded Sir Arthur's address. The Princiapl touched on the devotion of the men who had failen doing tribute to their sacrifice which were not in vain. He closed with the "Roll of Honour" as penpetuated in the stone base.

The ceremony was closed with prayer and "The Last Post."

A touching scene was enacted afterward when the father of one of the boys whose name appears on the stone, approached the base to examine his boy's memorial. He touched each face of the stone reverently and ran his fingers over the face bearing the carven name. He asked whose names were to either side and underneath. With "He is in good company" the old man turned away and the bystanders noticed that he was blind.

AN ORDERED HOUSE

An ordered house. How sweet it is The smell of wind-swept clothes The shinning pots and pantry shelves The cups in tidy rows The polished stove, the smell of bread Which every house-wife knows. How dear it is, that ordered house The polished brass near firelight Familiar books and shabby chairs And chintzes cheery bright The cozy rooms clean-sweet and cool That friendly talk invite. How near it is that ordered house How broad its door, how far its light. From many windows brightly lit Streams out into the night. O life give me that ordered house I promise it will be More than a selfish dwelling-place To shelter him and me We'll make of it a resting-place To bring the tired in And laugh with lonely ones who've missed The joys that we have seen But still, if love should pass me by And I must homeless live Help me within myself to build A house whose light can give Warm love and comfort to my friends And friendship to the lone So still in my own heart I'll bear Something that's like a home.

THE SONG OF THE READING-ROOM DOOR.

(A Song Without Music.) I swing on my unoiled hinges And produce sweet melody: I lift my voice in accents wild, It sinks to murmurs low. As people go in with books high-piled. And come out with heads bent low, see the scenes of victory; And many of dire defeat; And all the groans that are uttered Find an echo in my squeak." So this is the song of the readingroom door. Pray, better it if you can. But the only way that this can be done Is-to buy a new oil can. The last

AN ODE TO ODIOUS HORACE

Horace is my only joy, All his odes give me delight; Oft I seek his meaning coy. In the watches of the night.

For three days from twelve to one Again I seek his inspired songs; Horace had a lot of fun, Didn't weep much o'er his wrongs;

But opened up a cask of wine Stored in the consul Biblius' day, Then asked fair Chloe in to dine— Then asked fair Chloe in And so they passed the night away.

With tales like these he alternates
The epic deeds of Regulus,
Relates the hard deeds of the Fates,
Tells how Europa's dad did cuss.

Perusing these, I realize Compulsory Latin is a blessing; Its beauties, which we now despise, In after years we'll be confessing.

THE CAMPUS AT TWILIGHT

Above the trees the pale grey sky hangs lower

The city lights reflected in a glow

While all around, reluctant-wise and Flake after flake floats down the thick soft snow.

The hurly-hurly of the day is dying The foot-prints on the portes are filling fast

The little people with their sleds are flying

Sturdy in winter togs they hurry past.

The tall grey trees are stretching out their fingers

To catch the flakes that fall so downey soft.

And here and there some clinging snowlace lingers

A bit of fluff that clusters up aloft.

On either side grey buildings, which, in-

With squares of yellow bright

Send out soft radiance through a morning shade

Of snow-flakes gainst the light.

Often in after days when I have thee

In noisy, lonely crowds will hy cease

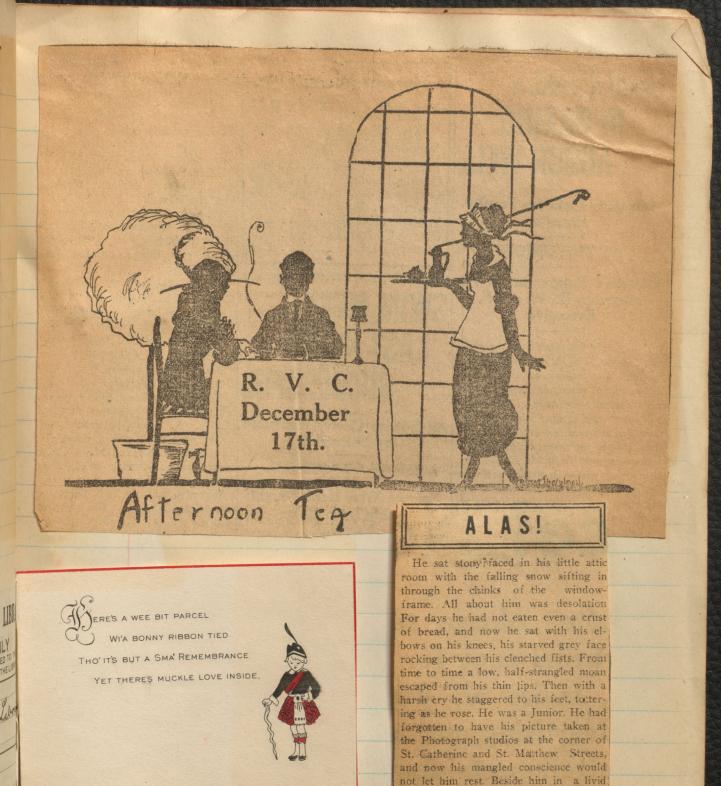

And for a moment will this guide me

A. A. MILNE'S COMEDIES "The Great Broxopp"

A few weeks ago three comedies by A. A. Milne were running simultaneously in Greater New York; they were "Mr. Pim Passes By", "The Dover Road" and "The Great Broxopp". Mr. Pim was produced last season by the Theatre Guild and is now touring the United States. It played an engagement in Toronto this season and will probably return ere the current season ends. Iden Payne, the English actor and director, who has been actively engaged in the states the past five years directing the Frohman productions, notably "Declassee", "Mary Rose", and "Dear Brutus" of the past two or three seasons, is sponsor for "The Great Broxopp." He also heads its cast. "The Dover Road" is still running in New York. "The Great Broxopp" will visit three weeks in Canada and then go to Boston for a run.

The Milne comedies have become the vogue in the United States. Perhaps no other author has been so popular since Clyde Fitch, and a few English writers have had as many as three plays running simultaneously in the States.

"The Great Broxopp" which Milne considers his best play, is a comedy of English life with its scenes laid in London and herenvirons. A paragraph cannot explain just what is "The Great Broxopp"; the New York critics took columns to analyze this comedy. In a word the New York Times said: "It is a gorgeous comedy". Alan Dale of the New York American was moved to say: "It is so fragile, and so true, and so timely."

I've got down for a couple of tickets. We're getting up a raffle for a poor man of our neighborhood.

None for me, thank you. I wouldn't know what to do with a poor man if I won him.

At a recent entertainment given by a country church congregation, one of the old deacons made the announcements.

He occasioned much surprise when he arose and said.

"The next on the programme will be music. Miss Tabitha Tompkins will sing 'Put me in my little bed,' accompanied by the minister." AN EASIER NUMBER TO REMEMBER

IN TRAINING.

In any athletic contest the difference between the trained and the untrained man are soon apparent. The trained man will engage in a strenuous contest with less wear and tear on his physical system than the man who has failed to prepare for it, due to the greater co-ordination between nerve, muscle and brain, which his period of consistent training has engendered.

Following a few simple rules of health and engaging in sufficient exercise leads to the glowing health and physical fitness that enables men to enter into gruelling contests which, rather than having any ill effects, merely serve to strengthen them still more. It is the use of the muscles of the body that develops them. Allow the muscles to remain idle, and they will not only cease to grow stronger but will deteriorate in quality.

How about getting our brains into training? Do they not conform to the same general rules? The hopeless idler who is too lazy to think cannot be expected to develop initiative or creative talent. It is the use of the brain that leads to its greater efficiency and power. The man who reads much will find, as he follows out and grasps the ideas of a certain writer that ideas of his own, are continually popping into his head. They may not be particularly brilliant, but the fact remains that they are ideas, and as such are stimulating his brain to a greater activity that will result in greater development. Study and thought lead to greater facility of expression. The person who reads continually will find that as ideas appear they automatically seem to clothe themselves in words fitting and appropriate to their expression. The ideas of a mentally lazy man often remain too vague and indefinite for even an attempt at expression.

In the athletic world physical training, or the lack of it, means just the difference between the champion and the "has-been," while in the world of affairs trained or untrained mental faculties stand respectively for success or failure. The combination that forcing recognition in the world to-day is the trained body und the control of the trained mind. Both mental and physical tra ing mean sacrifices, but it will pay us to think these things or carefully.

PABLO CASALS

Season 1920-1921

MANAGENENT:
METROPOLITAN MUSICAL BUREAU

33 WEST 42nd STREET, NEW YORK CITY

PABLO CASALS

INCE the day when as a boy of 16, Pablo Casals, while still a pupil of the Barcelona Conservatory of Music, received a decoration from the hands of the Queen of Spain, his name has been synonymous with the greatest attainments in the field of violoncello music.

Born in Vendrell, Spain, of a father who was the local organist and church choir master, Casals studied the flute, piano and violin before devoting his life work to violoncello; but having found in the latter instrument the true symbol of his music dreams he rapidly forged ahead, until today throughout the civilized world he stands acclaimed the master. The recipient of the highest honors attainable in the domain of music, Pablo Casals came first to America in 1914. His playing created a veritable sensation, and his name rapidly became a household word in this country.

His return this year for an extensive tour under the direction of the Metropolitan Musical Bureau is being hailed as one of the greatest musical events of the coming season, for, while the violin, the piano and other instruments can each claim several great interpreters, when one speaks of the violoncello, one knows but one great name—Pablo Casals.

Casals' recitals in New York and Chicago last year were tributes such as are paid only to the world's greatest artists. In each city, halls were long sold out in advance, with many hundreds of people turned away. The notices paid in the press to recitals by this artist indicate the high pinnacle in the realm of musical art on which he is established. He is everywhere unanimously acclaimed in the language of Fritz Kreisler as "the greatest musician that has ever drawn a bow."

COMMENTS

"PABLO CASALS is still the prince of 'cellists, and the knowledge that he is such was what filled Acolian Hall to overflowing yesterday afternoon. The Spanish musician was at his best as to warmth and size of tone, brilliancy of technique and poetic imagination. To hear him play the Bach G Major Suite was an education for all 'cellists, it was so poised, so sure, so serene.

"The Loccatelli D Major Sonata gave him a splendid opportunity to display the vigor and elasticity of his bowing, and in the shorter numbers, in the Seven Variations on a Mozart Theme of Beethoven, in the Arioso of Bach and the Allegro Spiritoso of Senaille, the same qualities were apparent. Hearing him yesterday we did not wonder that Pablo Casals has been called the equal of Fritz Kreisler, and it was evident that that opinion was shared by the huge audience."-New York Tribune, March 7, 1920.

"Casals has no peer on artistry. His is the rich, luscious tone, the unerring sense and delicacy that are given to only the few in any of the branches of art. With that sure deft bow of his he draws pictures, rare musical gems, that carry his hearers into other realms and distant lands. There is no theme so delicate or so tender that Casals does not grasp its elusive threads with the unerring hand and heart of the true artist. He catches and portrays all the varying shades and enriches them with his sensitive touch. His very finger tips seem to radiate music, harmony, sympathy. He was received yesterday with spontaneous enthusiasm which greets him whenever he appears upon a concert stage, and with that real responsive outburst that is given only to those whose playing penetrates to the very hearts of an audience."

-New York Telegraph, March 7, 1920.

"Pablo Casals, the Spanish 'cellist, played yesterday afternoon to a house and stage sold out many days in advance at Aeolian Hall, the quality of his audience being a remarkable tribute, even if this had not been a 'first and only' recital of the artist whom Kreisler once described as 'the best man who draws a bow.' In beauty of tone, delicacy of phrase, all the subtler arts of instrumental eloquence, the 'cellist matched this tour-de-force with Boellmann's Symphonique Variations,' before his last encores."

-New York Times, March 7, 1920.

"In his first recital in two years, Pablo Casals was enthusiastically received by an audience which filled Aeolian Hall to capacity on Saturday afternoon. The most pleasing feature of his program was the Loccatelli Sonata in D Major, written originally for viola da gamba, and arranged for 'cello by Piatti. Mr. Casals played this with the true artistry that always characterizes whatever he does."-New York Post, March 8, 1920.

"Old-time masters were fond of painting certain favorite saints or beloved monks playing the viola da gamba, and they usually pictured them as being listened to by cherubs or by members of the celestial choir.

"Pablo Casals as he sat yesterday on the stage of Kimball Hall with his pale, monklike face, his eyes closed, his head held quite away from the top of his cello, and turned from it, a man seemingly apart from all about him, conscious only of the beauty of the music he was making—sitting thus he recalled these old-time paintings. There was something distinctly Old-Worldly and medieval about him and his appearance and manner.

"Those who listened were mere mortals, and enough of them to crowd stage and concert room to the last available place. But they sat stilled and reverent as any immortals, and it required but little imagining to picture unseen forces and spirits gathered close about the player guiding and inspiring him. For the music that mortal ears heard there was music that cherub or celestial singer

"It was as near the perfection of cello playing as human skill and intelligence would seem able to achieve. The tone seemed something above and beyond aught that wood, string and bow could produce and the infinite variety in gradation, shading, and nuance impressed as of the spirit of music itself rather than of mere human intelligence and taste."

-Chicago Daily Tribune, March 1, 1920.

"He is the greatest of the 'cellists, if not the greatest of the players of stringed instruments. With him the friction of horsehair, resin and gut is completely transmuted into glorious, golden tone, as vital, suave and elastic as that of the finest violin playing, but with the grave, resonant depth that belongs only to the larger instrument."—Chicago Journal, March 1, 1920.

makes records exclusively for Columbia

Casals is admittedly the world's greatest violoncellist, and the records made by him form a high tribute to his art in their faultless natural tone and precision of musical outline.

Rubinstein's Melody in F, that unexplainably popular piano composition of the great composer "laid out like an old-fashioned garden, boxed hedges and straight paths" and Saint-Saens' The Swan are two Casals' gems. The Swan is one of the most popular of Saint-Saens' compositions from one of his least-known works, "carnival of the animals." The "carnival" is a zoological potpourri of well-known airs and parodies punctuated throughout with imitative animal effects, a very amusing burlesque, a veritable Noah's Ark set to music.

The composer of Kathleen Mavourneen, Crouch, was a violon-cellist in King's Theatre, London. As we hear Casals interpret the exquisite melody upon his instrument we feel that the composer must have written the music originally for the 'cello. This is a record which will give pleasure as long as music lives.

KENNERLEY RUMFORD

LARA BUTT, the famous English contralto and one of the world's greatest lieder singers, was born at Southwick, Sussex, England. She first studied with Daniel Rootham at Bristol, and later gained a scholarship at the Royal College of Music where she was a pupil of Mr. J. H. Blower. After some appearances at college concerts she made her debut at the Royal Albert Hall as Ursula in "The Golden Legend" and a few days afterwards sang the part of Orpheus at a pupils performance at the Lyceum Theatre. Her appearance met with such success that King Edward—who was then Prince of Wales—ordered a second performance.

From that time on Clara Butt was in constant demand for concerts of all kinds. Her commanding stature and splendid stage presence, besides the rich beauty of her phenomenal voice, brought her unqualified success and it was not long before she was known as "England's Greatest Contralto." Subsequently she studied in Paris with M. Bouhy and at the same time had some lessons with Etelka Gerster. The concert field has always been of more interest to her than the operatic, though a brilliant career in opera had been predicted for her after her first early performance of Orpheus. In 1920 she deserted the concert platform long enough to make some amazing appearances in the part at Covent Garden where she received a tremendous ovation. Recently Mme. Butt received the title of "Dame Clara Butt" from King George V, so that she is now known as Dame Butt—an honor bestowed on very few singers.

In 1902 Clara Butt became the wife of Kennerley Rumford, the well known baritone. Mr. Rumford was born in London and was a pupil of Henschel and Alfred Blume, making his debut at St. James' Hall at one of Henschel's Symphony Concerts with great success. Later he had lessons in Paris of Georges Sbriglia and on his return to England rapidly rose to a position of marked popularity with the public and musicians.

Mr. Rumford is one of England's greatest baritones, an artist of remarkable vocal endowments, of fine schooling and blessed with a personality that wins all audiences. His solo numbers invariably win hearty applause, and his numbers with Dame Butt are rare examples of duet singing.

With Dame Butt and Mr. Rumford comes Melsa, a Polish violinist of distinction, whose solos have been a pleasing feature of the programs which Dame Butt and Mr. Rumford have presented. Melsa has won splendid acclaim abroad, and North American audiences will find in him a worthy addition to the list of violin virtuosi who have appeared on this continent.

At the piano for Dame Butt, Mr. Rumford and Melsa will be Miss Grace Torrens, whose brilliant accompaniments have elicited enthusiasm throughout the tour. Miss Torrens is a fine coadjutor for the solo artists.

Dame Butt, Mr. Rumford and their assisting artists will offer programs of a musical but popular character, and will present at various times all of the selections for which they have won world renown.

CO-EDS AND COLLEGE LIFE.

The decision which was reached at the Annual Meeting of the Students' Society yesterday to present a trophy to the Intercollegiate Co-Eds Basketball League is one which meets with approval on all parts of the Campus.

During the past athletic season, the support accorded the various teams by the ladies of the R.V.C. has been very marked. The enthusiasm displayed during the Rugby season, when hundreds of red-tammed rooters cheered themselves hoarse encouraging the fighting gridiron representatives of McGill; and then the repetition of this when the Hockey schedule commenced, has changed the opinion of many of the cyynics who are fond of declaring that college spirit may only be expected to come from the male members of the student body.

The good start made last year, and greatly enlanced this year augurs well for the part that the R.V.C. students nay be expected to play in McGill college life of the future. At other colleges the members of the opposite sex have a definite place in Campus affairs, and give their earnest support to all college endeavours. The R.V.C. will undoubtedly continue to make their relationship to college activities more vital.

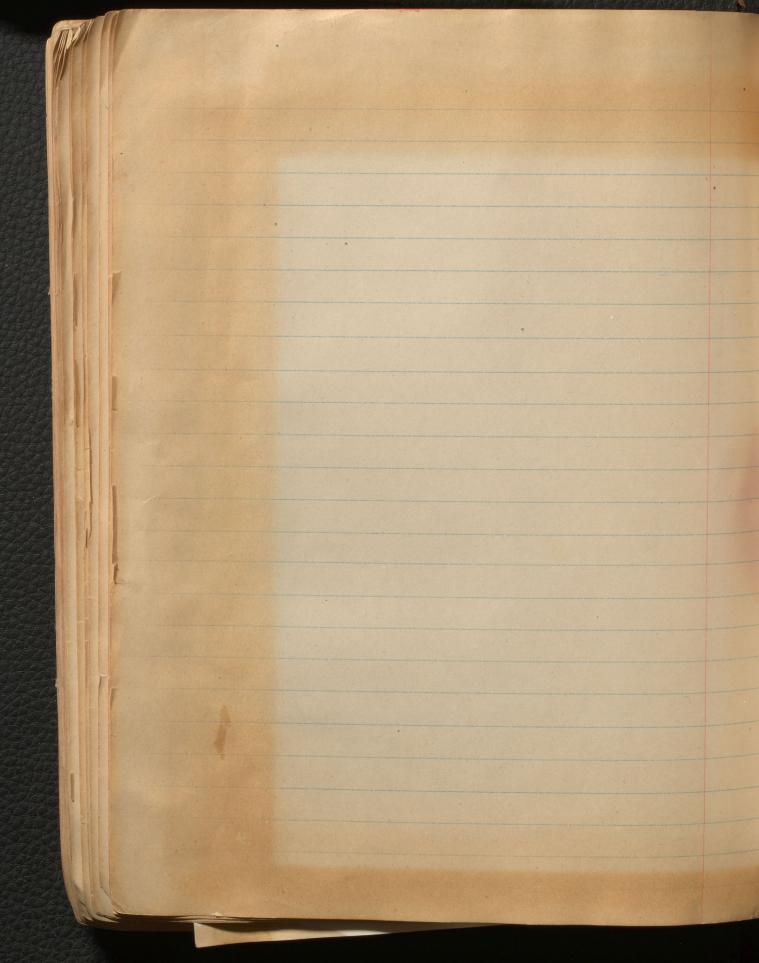

The presentation of the trophy by the student body is meant not merely as a token of appreciation, but as a means of encouraging Intercollegiate contests between the women students of McGill and Toronto University.

It is understood, also, that the student body of the latter university has decided to present a similar trophy for the Co-Eds Intercollegiate Hockey League. With two trophies to be competed for next year by the women students, Intercollegate Co-Ed sport may be expected to come quickly to the fore in Canada.
