The history of Ch. Ch. is largely the history of the University of Oxford. It remains the wealthiest and largest foundation ever been ruled by a series of famous & energetic Bishops - John de Beaufort, John de Pless, Henry Aldrich, Francis Atterbury, Cyril Jackson, Henry George Dodder the great scholar. The Dean is appointed by the Crown.

"Where England's greatest men the world Prelate and Statesman, Justice and poet"

Wadsworth is said to be the most splendid college in the world
No magnificent dining hall the finest "Jopina" etc. has ever been adorned by sumptuous entries and the kitchen a perfect cube in shape some appreciated by some "whose taste for misanthropes is greater than the for portraits"

In 1852 act of Parliament sitting beside the Cathedral of doors (Students of fellows) President must be. Act may be held Chap. bequest.

do plan meant greater promotion - people who stayed advanced about half student now remained. Found all in half orders the Ch. had some "faculty students" found medicine hence John Dodge had the most merit. Butler was just vicar of St. Thomas, the superior had lived here.

^{many colleges,}
Student-life within walls - all things together - undegraded loyalty toward colleges rather than University - in 1850 would not turn anyone outside.

W.D., entered into life vigorously & tho a Prof did not need to come much into contact with college - always at his best in the Common Room, as Lewis Carroll once curators must have been that Success Dedson & then Russell as Curator of Common Room.
