

CUS417/6.29

F. 51.

"OXFORD MEDICAL PUBLICATIONS."

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS.

HODDER & STOUGHTON.

16, Pembroke Crescent,

W.

Feb. 15th, 1907.

Dear Professor Osler,

I have your two post cards. I shall write to Collier and Whitelocke, and ask if they can see me between 6 & 8 p.m., on Sunday. Perhaps you would speak to Parker. WE will not have much to discuss together, and I shall see that Horder has his proposed plans of the book drawn out.

With regard to the System, Power is working hard, and getting everything into line.

Iwan Bloch promises his MS. in a fortnight's time, but I have no reply to my two letters to Metschnikoff. Do you think you could write to him yourself about it; I am sure he would reply to your letter. The suggested length of his article on the Bacteriology was 48 pages of 400 words, and the terms offered to him was £30. ^{you}

I shall tell you ^{you} wish to know with regard to terms when we meet. They, of course, vary very much according to the author and the work, as well as the expense of the production.

With regard to Neuberger, the Publishers are quite ready to publish it on your recommendation. We can consider the question of translation and translator on Sunday. I should be quite ready to have it translated here under my supervision, and when finished submit it part by part to you, but you will tell me what you think of this suggestion.

Very sincerely yours,

W. Keop. Murphy

W. Osler, Esq., M.D., F.R.C.S.,
13, Norham Gardens,
OXFORD.