CEDINGTON RECTORY, MISTERTON, SOM.

Dr. Wm. Casheing

My efforts to get any information from Dr. Perkin - King (of Bath) have failed and old Mr. G.A. Ditchfield who was Mathematical Master under Badgley at Weston-super-Mare may remember anything. I think I may have mentioned to you that he is still living in Hampstead in the North of London. With reference to your other question of books used - I only remember the French Grammar (Grammaire des Gravureuses) as taught by Profes: Peruch a Frenchman

Morrell's English Grammar and

CHEMINGTON RECTORY

MISTERTON, SOM.

a Book on Old Testament History the "Chosen People" and the Church Catechism.

We were taught Virgil to recite and learn by heart and I think Greek

Hellenic a boy from St Catharines ^{McC}
^{he died just after leaving school} Could recite five hundred lines, or more beginning "Aenean viresque cano"

In those days learning useless stuff by heart was presumably a good foundation for leaving an endless impression on the mind

As to understanding what one learned was quite a different matter.

I don't think any one worried about that part of it - Not if You could not say "You duly appointed task - You usually & I always invariably had to pay for your idleness."

Have you seen Mr Campbell

Old Name John

Toronto - Son of a Stock Broker of my day - he might remember a good deal - he was as a boy given to writing poems about the School I think his name was Harry (?)

Very sincerely
