CUS417/73.23

~~He was certainly very eager to do~~ Patients were a secondary consideration.
A consulting practice came next, and when his access to him was finally forced as in the Saturday in Baltimore they came in such shoals as to drive him away. But he was certainly very eager to do, so much indeed as to make a necessity of the regular Parks which he pursued. Registrar of the School, pathologist to the hospital, on the council of the Academy the two Societies, Contributions in the reports of many of his colleagues reading papers of his own; the entertaining agent of the Medical & Chirurgical Society; Clinical Trans Parker - foreign medical articles for Forwicks' Journal; and with all this he kept up with his Natural history studies on the Salysbury beside taking regular journeys for play and relaxation.

By reading a pathological note usually the most important feature of the papers;
Conjoint

Editing the transactions of the Medical Association & preparing for this Elaborate pathological report;