Dear Martin :-

Your letter came as I was leaving the house this morning, I have just called you up but either the line was busy or you were away - the latter, I suppose, as you say you are still in the country.

Mrs. Martin is a faithless soul - what of her promise to let me know when she came to Baltimore? It would have been such a pleasure to see her and the lassie. Perhaps she thought I had flown - I do not leave until June of next year. The attraction of Oxford and a comparatively peaceful life was too strong. I return to-night to Baltimore.

Houghton Mifflin & Co. will send you in a few days my Ingersoll lecture on Science and Immortality. The concluding paragraph alone is important.

Do tell the daughter to let me know when her first free Saturday comes - it will be such a pleasure to have her with us.

Sincerely yours,

Wm. Osler.
