

(Card to Sir Humphry Rolleston)
(handwriting)

(Nov. 13, '19)

Wednesday

13, NORHAM GARDENS,
OXFORD.

Still growing stronger - I mean the cough! but no fever & the paroxysms are less severe. An acute pleurisy at 11.35 Friday night. T to 101 normal by noon on Saturday, now a dry rub (1) palpable, (2) felt there without palpation, and (3) when on left side heard loudly, to & fro, I suppose via the Eustachian tube. Am very comfortable - Appetite good & am enjoying myself! In the recent Life of Samuel Butler vol. 1 there is a notice of your N. Z. uncle.

Love to Lady Rolleston
