Dear Mr. Gilman

Thank you so much for the lovely present which we found at Hospital on Wednesday am. We sail on the Ena on Saturday. Dr. Gilman Thompson told me that you were going abroad. Do let me have your address when you reach London. A line to Brown Shipley & Co. will reach me. With sincere regards to Mrs. Gilman

Yours sincerely,

W^m Osler

Two days after their wedding, Susan Chapin told me of the secret - kept quite secret by Mrs. Goss was from the faithful colored servants. The night before Grace was made the angels hunt downstairs Renshaw and Jacobus then and arranged for expression to call my father. She let him in before anyone was up and sent the luggage containing her tryst - new colored dresses off to the station.

The wedding was to be at two o'clock and we were there. Half before since we saw Dr. Wilson come in seemed to think nothing of finding her. Indeed when he found they were having a party he announced that he would stay - which he did. Grace was a bit nervous about him and half before two said she did not know what the other two were going to do but she had an engagement at 12 and there was a carriage waiting for her at the door. We were used to driving the car going and asked if she would give him a lift. Wilson faded from their unsuspecting.
