Epitaph in Dorchester Church.

'Readers! If thou hast a heart fam'd for Tenderness and Pity, contemplate this spot, in which are deposited the remains of a young lady whose artless beauty, innocence of mind and gentle manners once obtained her the love and esteem of all who knew her. But when nerves were too delicately spun to bear the rude shocks and jostlings which we meet with in this transitory world, Nature gave way, she sunk and died a martyr to excessive sensibility. 1799.

'She committed suicide in reality'.

Another:

In memory of Anne daughter of Thomas Dandria, wife of Henry Price, died Jan. 10th 1695.
