

CONSULTATIONS BY APPOINTMENT
8 TO 5 P.M.

THOMAS MCCRAE, M.D.
1929 SPRUCE STREET
PHILADELPHIA

September 7th, 1923.

1907

CUS417/105, 11

My dear Harvey:-

The System was called "Modern Medicine" in this country, which I may say confidentially was done without our knowledge. We expected it to be termed "A System of Medicine". In Great Britian, as the volumes were printed over there, hous it was called "A System of Medicine" in the English Edition". Only Sir William's name appeared on the back of the first edition; both of our names appeared on the second (five volumes) edition. You should have received a copy of both editions.

The articles by Sir William Osler are as follows in the first edition:

Volume I: The Evolution of Internal Medicine, which is an introductory chapter.

Volume III: Syphilis (With J. W. Churchman).

Volume IV: Acute Endocarditis.
Diseases of the Valves of the Heart. (With A. G. Gibson)
Diseases of the Arteries.
Aneurysm.

Volume VI: Raynaud's Disease.
Angioneurotic Oedema.
Scleroderma.
Erythremomelalgia.

With kind regards,

Yours very sincerely,

Thomas McCrae