H.B. Jacobs.

Paris,
Nov. 27th, 1908.

Post card.

I sent Young's Phthisis the other day. Very interesting book to have been written by the greatest physicist of England in the first half of the 19th century. Cast an eye on his life in the D. U. B. I am up to my eyes in work - too much to see. I am seeing so many nice men. Dieulafoy embarrasses me by making me sit at his right hand in his clinique, and Raymond insists that I have an arm chair on his platform. I am picking up a few good books here at best - but they are scarce.

Such weather! not more than four bad days since Oct. 1st. Love to Mrs. Jacobs.

Yours

W.O.
