Dear Strouse,

Many thanks for your interesting papers, two of which I had already seen. The one on the fresh blood examination calls attention to a neglected and very simple procedure, from which much may be learned.

I am glad you have given the experience of the different diets in typhoid. I am afraid we would require a longer series before we could get to the truth of the matter. You have certainly made a most interesting contribution.

With kind regards and best wishes.

Sincerely yours,

WM OSLER
